Spread Out Too Thin
All Drink, Says He Great Chance for Hoover
Gold, Silver, Lead

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

"DON'T spread yourself out too thin." Brokers give that advice when your margin is small, real estate men give it when your mortgage is too big.

Britain's empire is spread out a little thin, with its flag all over the world, seen as Rudyard Kipling observes by the heavy bear in the north, and the savages dancing naked at the equator.

Contrast France, small, compact, concentrated country, with the thinly spread British Empire.

Britain lent billions to France in the war. Now Britain is hard up, harassed by high taxes, compelled to pay "dole" to millions of unemployed.

France has a billion dollars gold on deposit in the United States.

France, with no unemployed, has brought in hundreds of thousands of laborers from Italy and elsewhere.

France has the greatest fighting air fleet in the world, three times as big as any other nation, and British leaders tell you privately "we must be polite to France."

Britain has three hundred million Hindus and one is Gandhi, with one Russian bear to worry her in India.

She has her race troubles in South Africa.

She wants the biggest navy in the world, is accustomed to having it. She can't afford it.

Luckily she can make Uncle Sam do whatever she wants. But France says, "I will do as I please."

The dry-wet fight continues. Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of business concerns in New York, says he knows no "leading financier, banker, industrialist or manufacturer who does not break the dry law."

That seems conclusive. Rep. Michener, Republican from Michigan, asked, "How about Henry Ford?"

"I do not know him," replied Murphy. The statesmen laughed.

Henry Ford is as dry as the inside of Tutankhamen's mummy. It will interest you to know that doctors advised him to drink red wine, favorite beverage of Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, but Ford wouldn't do it.

Suggest government operation and you are told "the government doesn't know enough, or isn't honest enough."

But why couldn't government experiment in government power ownership at Muscle Shoals?

That would involve only engineering problems.

The financial problem of seeing how much the people can be made to pay for water that the Lord causes to run down hill is simple.

President Hoover understands the engineering part, surely.

What a wonderful chance at Muscle Shoals, also at Boulder Dam, to show how wise the people were when they elected a great engineer President of the United States.

Conrad Hubert, who changed his name from Horowitz, made many millions, left $6,001,000 to useful charities, left $1,000,000 to his brother.

The brother, who sticks to his old-fashioned name Horowitz, has been a humble court interpreter and says he will now devote his time to German opera and charity.

Why did the rich brother wait until he was dead to give a million dollars to his mother's other son?

Many of us forget the proverb often quoted by Nathan Straus, "What you give in health is gold, what you give in sickness 's silver, what you give after death is lead."

Claude Udwin is one of three sentenced to death yesterday for murdering Henry Sullivan, leader of a prison riot.

When sentenced to die Udwin bowed ironically, saying: "O. K., judge."

That spirit gangsters admire. Also that spirit leads to the electric chair.

To sentence those men to death as though they had premeditated an ordinary murder seems severe.

Sullivan, who was killed, led a rebellion. The three convicts killed him.

If a guard had killed him, the

MERCURY, 65, SETS FEB. 20 RECORD HERE

100 Bathers Take Plunge at L St.; Noon-Hour Crowds Flock to the Common

Boston took rank with Miami as a winter resort today, when record-breaking temperatures drove throngs into the ocean at L st. beach, South Boston.

With the official thermometer registering 65, a record for this date, and glasses in the sun showing the mercury at 78, at 1:30, more than 100 bathers were enjoying the balmy breeze and warm water.

According to Supt. John Donovan, the number of bathers was being augmented steadily, and the line of automobiles parked along the beach was growing rapidly.

In other parts of the city men were going around with overcoats on their arms, mopping their foreheads, while on the Common girl stenographers and clerks spent their lunch hours basking in the sun.

According to the weatherman, the previous record for this date was 60, established in 1913, and he expected continued fair and warm weather tonight and tomorrow.

Boston was not unusual as far as abnormal weather conditions were concerned, for high temperatures prevailed generally throughout the United States.

However, at 8 a. m., the temperature in New Orleans was only 3 degrees higher than in the Hub, while in Jacksonville and Tampa it was only 9 degrees higher at that hour.

Up in Springfield, where 64 degrees was recorded, wasps and hornets were discovered moving about, and pussy willows were being collected.

Not only was today the hottest Feb. 20 on record, but it was the warmest February day in the history of the weather bureau, and has been exceeded only twice in meteorological winters, comprising December January and February.

On January 1, 1876, the official mercury reached 70 and on Dec. 6, 1912, it was recorded at 69. The hottest February days were Feb. 29, 1880, and Feb. 5, 1890, when the official thermometers registered 64.

U. S. Flier Sets Four New World Records

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP)—Four new world speed records for airplanes carrying 2204 pounds in addition to his own weight were set here today by Lee Shoenhair of Akron, O.

His speed over a 100-kilometer course was 175.997 miles an hour. The former record of 160.280 was held by Capt. H. S. Broad of Great Britain. The American's record for the 500-kilometer course was 168.114.

The other records broken were over the 100-kilometer course with 500 pounds and over the 500-kilometer course without added weight.

Pastor Burned as Lantern Explodes

The Rev. William M. Partridge, pastor of St. Ann's Episcopal Church, Dorchester, was burned today in a fire which damaged his automobile at New Haven, Ct.

Explosion of gasoline in a lantern which the Rev. Mr. Partridge was using in the rear of the machine, which was parked near one of the buildings of the Berkeley Divinity School, caused the fire.

In an attempt to extinguish the blaze the clergyman was severely burned about the arms.

'HYPOCRITES' IN CONGRESS ARE DENOUNCED

Bootleg Millions Setting Up a Super-Government, Ex-Senator Declares

Washington, Feb. 20—Many members of Congress are politically dry but personally wet, it was charged before the House Judiciary Committee today by former United States Senator George H. Williams of Missouri.

Williams, director of the Board of Children's Guardians of Delinquency in Youth at St. Louis, asserted that for political reasons many members of Congress came out as drys during campaigns and ignored other questions.

His argument was made in connection with bills relating to repeal of the dry laws, and a stormy session was barely averted when he referred to "dry-voting, wet-drinking members of Congress" as hypocrites.

Financed by bootleg millions, a gigantic underworld is fastening its claws on the nation and setting up a super-government, the committee was told by witnesses.

The witnesses, in addition to ex-Senator Williams, included Frederic Coudert of New York and Ralph M. Shaw of Chicago.

Their startling picture of prohibition conditions in the great cities of the country was supported by the testimony of ex-Assistant Secretary of War Benedict Crowell of Cleveland.

Representatives Sumners (D.) of Texas and Browning (D.) of Tennessee both took violent of-

Chairman O'Connor Asks to Be Relieved

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—Chairman O'Connor of the shipping board today requested President Hoover to replace him as head of that government agency, but said that he would retain his membership on the board.

O'Connor said his health made it necessary for him to be relieved of the chairmanship. He said, however, he felt that he could perform the duties of a commissioner if some one else took the chairmanship.

Tardieu Is Asked to Serve His Conqueror

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP)—Former Premier Tardieu late today definitely refused to accept a post in the cabinet which Camille Chautemps, Radical Socialist leader, has been trying to form.

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP)—Camille Chautemps, radical Socialist leader, who is trying to form a new cabinet, today asked former Minister Tardieu to take a portfolio in the new ministry and to remain at the head of the French delegation to the naval conference in London.

Tardieu, whose government was overthrown largely through the efforts of Chautemps, reserved decision on the invitation, it was officially announced.

Indications were this afternoon that Tardieu would refuse, thus greatly handicapping Chautemps' chances for success.

Close friends of the former premier said Tadieu categorically refused a Cabinet post this morning, but delayed official announcement until this evening, when he will meet Chautemps, out of deference to President Doumergue and Aristide Briand, who were pleading with him to accept.

Chautemps was called upon earlier today by President Gaston Doumergue to form a government. He told the president he would try to do so.

He left the Elysee palace and at once began consultations with his own supporters and leaders of other groups in search of a cabinet combination which would give him a majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

Besides being president of the most important group of the Left in the Chamber, Chautemps recently superseded former Premier Edouard Herriot as leader of the entire Left, or liberal-radical, side of the Chamber, which Monday voted down Premier Tardieu and his minister of finance, Henri Cheron, on a budgetary item.

This was revealed in a dispatch from San Luis Potosi to the newspaper La Prensa, saying police there had arrested one Vincente Aurrecochea, a student, who had in his possession a letter from another student, now in the United States, revealing plans of the purported plot against the American President. Eielson's Body Is Dug Out of Snow in Arctic Fairbanks, Alaska, Feb. 20 (AP)—The body of Carl Ben Eielson, noted polar flier, was recovered 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, Tuesday.

This fact was wirelessed to Fairbanks by Joe Crosson, one of the American fliers who conducted the search.

Eielson's body and that of Earl Borland, his mechanic, were placed aboard an airplane at the scene and rescuers awaited favorable weather to fly out of the Siberian northland with them. Borland's body was found last Thursday.

Crosson, at the ice-bound fur trading motorship Nanuk, near North Cape, to which Eielson and Borland were flying when they crashed November 9, reported Eielson's body had been found more than 200 feet from the fuselage of his wrecked plane and under less than one foot of snow, the wind having swept the spot nearly clear.

FIVE GARMENT WORKERS ARE ARRESTED IN CLASHES

3000 Spectators Watch Labor Demonstrations: Strikers Searched for Weapons

While 3000 spectators looked on, crowds of striking garment workers and sympathizers surged through Kneeland st. today in an attempt to prevent loyal workers and strikebreakers from returning to work.

Rushed by the police, who searched every suspicious appearing man for weapons, the demonstrators were driven into side streets and, at the end of the noon hour, were kept moving.

Sergt. Thomas McMurray of Division 4, in charge of 25 uniformed patrolmen and a dozen plain clothes men, personally searched six men and the same procedure was followed by the officers.

The action was taken as a result of complaints by strike leaders that the opposition union had called gangsters here in an attempt to stop the strike.

The demonstration was the second of the day, the first having occurred in the morning, when police were forced to draw clubs to break up the crowd, and five arrests were made.

ROUTED BY POLICE

During the afternoon heavy picketing went on, and Sergt. McMurray stated he was prepared for trouble when the shops closed at 4:30.

The second demonstration broke out at noon when workers poured from the shops for lunch. Strikers and sympathizers rushed into Kneeland st., between Harrison ave. and Washington st., and police immediately began to drive them away.

As the police strove to break up the struggling, gesticulating groups, throngs of spectators gathered to watch the activities until it was estimated 3000 were on hand.

H. Koritz, manager of the Needle Trades Workers' Independent Union, in a statement declared that an attempt to bring out the issue of Communism would not interfere with the strikers' activities.

Although admitting there were Communists in the ranks, he insisted the objective of the strike was for a shorter week, pay and a half for overtime and pay for six holidays.

FIVE ARE ARRESTED

Koritz declared the opposing union has flooded Boston with gangsters, "and if the police will not protect us we will tackle them ourselves."

A meeting was planned at strike headquarters, 22 Harrison ave., for this afternoon, between shop managers and strikers.

The demonstrations occurred on Harrison ave. as strike-breakers and loyal workers were on their way to their places of employment.

Five arrests were made, four of them women, including two who were taken into custody during yesterday's demonstrations.

Those arrested and taken to Station 4 were: Gertrude Weinstein, 22, of Devon st., Roxbury; Lena Shensky, 48, Harwood st., Roxbury; Shirley Blumenthal, 21, Holborn ter., Roxbury, arrested yesterday; Jennie Hyde, 33, Poplar st., West End, arrested yesterday, and Jacob Roisen, 26, of Columbia rd., Dorchester.

The four women were charged with assault and battery on Ralph Greenberg of Johnson st., Mattapan, and Roisen with disturbing the peace.

According to Sergt. Thomas McMurray who made the arrests, the women attempted to intimidate Greenberg in front of 136 Harrison ave., and when he refused to heed lenge at what they termed Williams' indictment of the whole Congress.

"I do not indict the whole Congress, but I know that some members of Congress vote dry and drink," said Williams. "I have no respect for a hypocrite any place I find him."

The threatened altercation subsided when both Summers and Williams said they did not want to "get personal."

The squabble started when Summers said that the fact that Williams was not a candidate for office did not affect his testimony. "It affects a great many congressmen," retorted Williams.

SEES NO ENFORCEMENT

Williams declared that "there is no prohibition, state or national, in St. Louis or St. Louis county."

"This is evidenced by the fact that the prosecuting attorney in running for office, said he would not be expected to enforce the prohibition law," he said.

"Even the foreman of the grand jury in the eastern federal St. Louis district announced the jury would not indict prohibition law violations.

"When the jury had finished, the judge coaled in the jurors and thanked them for their work."

Williams defended the old-time saloon of North and South St. Louis as "family institutions run by good citizens who were usually leaders in their churches. They did not foster crime," he said.

"I do not have the antipathy to the saloon that some wets do," he said.

Williams declared that a condition is being created in St. Louis where farmers were hired to go to jail for crimes committed by wealthy alcohol makers.

NOT PUBLICLY KNOWN

"Who is sending these people to jail?" asked Rep. Moore (R.) of Ohio.

"The government—they are 'taking the rap' for the wealthy violators," he said.

"You don't mean to say this is a matter of public knowledge?" asked Rep. Summers (D.) of Texas.

"No."

"But you believe public opinion is so strong that open violation of the law is approved?" asked Summers.

"Yes."

Williams said leading citizens discuss bootleggers and buying of liquor in their clubs.

"They don't discuss other crimes," he said. "Men who would not dream of participating in the commission of any other offense are not too busy to entertain bootleggers and discuss their wares.

"Prohibition has created the worst, most desperate era of crimes in the history of the world. The government is at grips with it."

"Do you believe that violation is due to the way prohibition was enacted?" asked Rep. Summers.

"Yes, indeed."

The bootleggers are against repeal of prohibition just as are good church people, he said, adding:

"Thus we have the best and worst people in the nation linked together, unintentionally of course, to maintain prohibition."

A great class of people, he said, feel no guilt in violating the prohibition law, because they felt it was enacted without their consent.

OFFICIALS CORRUPTED

Shaw said the financing or organized gangs of criminals by the huge profits of illicit liquor dealings presents a menace that the whole country must face. Public officials, high and low, are being corrupted, he said.

"This underworld is growing so powerful that it may in the future become more powerful than the Government itself," said Shaw.

All of the witnesses declared that nullification of the 18th amendment in the Constitution is an actual fact, not only in the big cities but in rural communities.

Coudert asserted that "prohibition hasn't been enforced in New York and never will be enforced." He said that New York State would never again enact a prohibition enforcement act.

"The federal Government must take the burden," he said. "If you want prohibition enforced prepare to call out the Army and Navy, provide jail accommodations for 50,000,000 or 60,000,000 of people—and then take the consequences of a Government trying to do that being swept out of office."

COURT PRAISES HUB WOMAN

London, Feb. 10 (AP)—At the close of argument today Mrs. Elizabeth Bethune Campbell, daughter of the late Lady Howland of Toronto and wife of a Boston clergyman, was congratulated by the judicial committee of the privy council on the way she had presented a case.

Mrs. Campbell was the first woman to appear before the privy council. The matter in dispute is the estate of her mother.

The case has lasted at intervals since February 4 and Mrs. Campbell has spent four days in presenting it. Today when the respondent's case had been completed Lord Blanesburgh said the council would advise of its decision later and added:

"I think my learned colleagues would wish me to express the obligation the board feels to Mrs. Campbell and to learned counsel for respondents for the manner in which they have argued a case of much complexity. It has been conducted with admirable temper on both sides."

Mrs. Campbell thanked the council.

Police Seize Five in Needle Strike Clash their injunctions, attacked him.

Police were determined to prevent a proposed march on City Hall and the State House, and details were being held in readiness at all downtown stations under orders of Superintendent Michael H. Crowley.

It was planned to rush these details to the scene whenever the occasion warrants, and in the meantime Capt. Thomas Bligh of the State police was prepared to receive the strikers at the State House.

The parade plans were said to have been completed by the Communist wing of the strikers, the Needle Trade Workers' Industrial Union, with imported red leaders from New York joining local leaders in carrying out the demonstration.

Koritz's statement follows:

"Any attempt to confuse the issues of the cloak and dress workers who went on general strike at the call of the Needle Workers' Union will not stop us from spreading the strike.

"Our demand for the 40-hour week and five working days with two days' rest, pay and a half for overtime and pay for six holidays, is justified. For these we are going to fight.

"The attempt of International President Benjamin Schlesinger to bring out the issue of Communism in this struggle will not in the least interfere with our activities. Our union is affiliated with the Trades Union Unity League, which is managing the strike at New Bedford and in the South. We will mobilize all the forces of every trade if necessary in order to secure victory.

"We deny the plan to march on the State House. We maintain our right to strike and picket, and if the police interfere we will make ourselves heard.

"The opposing union has flooded Boston with gangsters and if the police will not protect us we will tackle them ourselves.

"We certainly do not deny there are Communists in our union and they are leading the strike, but we have numbers of all creeds, nationalities and faiths. We will attempt to concentrate on open shops where girls are working 6, 8 and 9 days a week under the most miserable sweatshop conditions."

At union headquarters, 22 Harrison ave., it was stated that 850 were out on strike. A meeting was to be held today between shop chairmen and the strikers.

In municipal court the five arrested pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued to February 26.

DUKE GIVES 3D BRIDE MILLION DOLLAR JEWEL

Heir to Westminster Weds at Democratic Ceremony in London Registry

London, Feb. 20—The Duke of Westminster today climbed into the headlines of London's newspapers again when he presented his bride, Loelia Ponsonby, with a necklace estimated to be worth a million dollars immediately after the couple were wed in a simple, truly democratic manner.

The ceremony took place in the Prince's Row register office. Meanwhile, hundreds gathered outside, fashionable bluebloods mingling with poor tenants of the Duke's London estates.

It was the Duke's third marriage. He had twice previously been divorced, in 1919 and 1925. Both divorce actions caused social stirs here.

The guests included Winston Churchill and his daughter. The ceremony was held in the board room, which was decorated with flowers, while the desk was covered by a rich tablecloth.

The bride was accompanied by her father. She wore a coat and dress of brown velvet trimmed with beige fox fur.

The Duke's tenants came to show their appreciation of his gift to them—a week's rent free. In addition the duke ordered all arrears of rent cancelled in honor of his wedding.

The couple later left on a honeymoon tour to the Mediterranean.

The Duke of Westminster is 50 years old, and an extensive property owner.

EIELSON'S BODY RECOVERED

Eielson's body was found about 150 feet from the place where that of Borland lay, indicating their ship crashed with terrific impact.

Wreckage of the plane, found Jan. 25 by Crosson and Pilot Harold Gillam, was scattered over a wide area.

Borland, whose wife and two small children live in Alaska, will be buried in Seattle while the body of Eielson will be taken by his father, Ole Eielson, to Hatton, N. D., for interment in the family burial plot. The elder Eielson, now is in Alaska awaiting the return of the body.

FLEW WITH WILKINS

Eielson was 32 years old and Borland was 28.

Eielson, conqueror of both the Arctic and Antarctic in airplane exploration, was Alaska's best known aviator and he perhaps did more than any other person to establish the airplane as means of transportation in the polar regions.

His most famous aerial exploit was a flight on April 15, 1928, across the top of the world from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, 2000 miles, with Capt. George Hubert Wilkins. Wilkins subsequently was knighted by King George of Great Britain.

Eielson and Borland were engaged in transporting passengers and furs from the Nanuk to Nome, Alaska, when lost. Accompanied by Frank Dorbandt they made one trip bringing six passengers and a quantity of furs to Nome. On the second takeoff, Dorbandt returned to Teller, their base, after a short flight on account of adverse weather while Eielson continued. Neither he nor Borland were seen alive again.

American Delegation in Mysterious Move

London, Feb. 20 (AP)—The American naval delegation held a secret meeting in the conference room of the Ritz Hotel this afternoon.

Every attempt was made to withhold information on the meeting, even to the fact that it occurred. A press announcement at headquarters simply stated that Mr. Stimson was in his office and was understood to be cleaning his desk for the week-end.

At 4 p. m. Secretary Stimson and Senator Reed walked to the House of Commons for a conference with Prime Minister MacDonald.

Although the work of the naval conference was at a standstill today because of the week's adjournment, legal advisers of the various delegations, including the French, in an informal way began discussions of the submarine question.

The conversations are without any binding effect, but the experts expect to go thoroughly into the problem of undersea craft.

In circles close to the French delegation is was said that no matter what government might be formed in France, the French naval position would remain as it has been from the beginning of the conference.

While participating in the conference only as observers now, the French are continuing their technical studies in view of the problems raised last week. Thus when a new delegation is appointed, France will be ready to continue the discussions.

Dino Grandi left for Italy and was not expected to return until next week. A small group of those attached to the French delegation gathered anxiously about the news ticker in the Carlton Hotel, awaiting word from Paris about the formation of a new government and its solution of the political crisis there.

There was little hope that this solution would alter materially the stalemate into which a phase of the negotiations seemed to have fallen when the Cabinet crisis materialized.

Hope now looks to limitation rather than to reduction; to curbing the naval ambitions of the future rather than to reducing the navies of the present.

WOMAN'S DEATH BELIEVED SUICIDE

Tentative Opinion in Case of State Official's Wife; a Full Investigation Is On

An "opinion" of suicide was given today by Medical Examiner Charles R. Abbott of Clinton in the case of Mrs. Frances Brooks, 52-year-old wife of Allen Brooks, administrative executive of the State Department of Public Utilities.

Mrs. Brooks, whose body was found in her automobile in the barn on the Brooks estate, Oak Hill, Harvard, was one of two victims of monoxide gas to die in the same manner on the same day.

In rendering an "opinion," Dr. Abbott reserved his final decision pending investigation of the case.

When the body was found, a rubber hose, attached to the car's exhaust pipe, was found extended into the sedan. The switch was on, the gas tank dry and the battery exhausted.

The other gas victim, adjudged a suicide, was Nelson B. Young, 30, a musician living in Highland st., Reading.

His body was found by his wife in the garage, seated in the closed car with a hose, leading from the exhaust pipe, in his mouth.

A senator tells the House judiciary committee the United States hires thugs to help prohibition enforcement.

New York's district attorney is told that officials of the plasterers' union hire thugs to intimidate builders and, if necessary, set fire to apartment houses not built with proper payment of "racket profit" and in a manner to suit the plasterers.

Both statements are unpleasant. In war, nations hire men to go kill the other men. That dates from the Stone Age and must be accepted.

But to hire professional "killers" to enforce prohibition, or to strengthen the "union racket," leads to trouble.

MRS. BRANDON INTIMATES THAT GILLESPIE KILLED HIS WIFE

THREATENS TO EXHUME HER BODY

Woman Lawyer Suing N. Y. Water Board Head for $574,000 Calls Him 'Jekyll-Hyde'

New York, Feb. 20—The intimation that George J. Gillespie, president of the New York board of water supply, may have murdered his invalid wife in 1925, was before a court and jury today.

The testimony was given by Mrs. Frances Marion Brandon, assistant corporation counsel, who is suing him for $574,165 for breach of promise to marry.

Mrs. Brandon admitted she had accused Gillespie in a letter of having killed his wife and told him that she was going to have the body exhumed.

"I have told him so to his face," she said. "The circumstances of her death were such that, knowing him to be what he was, I thought they should be investigated."

"DR. JEKYLL, MR. HYDE"

She added that she still believed that "a man who will destroy me—who will destroy any woman—will do anything."

Regarding Gillespie's repudiation of her announcement of their engagement following his wife's death, she testified:

"He said he would not have been surprised if any one of a million women had made the announcement. I knew from that that he had victimized a million women."

Mrs. Brandon accused the water board head of a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde existence—the Dr. Jekyll as gentle as a lamb, the Mr. Hyde stealing her clients, her practice and her reputation.

"He was as gentle as a little lamb, as helpless as a new-born babe—apparently," she said.

Q.—And you say he was helpless? A.—Helpless, helpless, helpless. He knew only the worldly things, and heaven and the hereafter. He didn't even read the newspapers, he said. He read nothing but the Good Book and the law.

"RELATIONS HOLY."

Q.—Were not your relations with Gillespie meretricious? A.—I had no money from Gillespie. Our relations were holy.

Q. Well, during your meretricious or necromancer relations with Gillespie, you knew he had a wife? A.—She was not his wife; he told me she was a wfie to him in name only.

Asked if she had "a profound love and affection for Gillespie," she retorted that she had "an uncontrollable attachment" for him and that "the minute he touched me I was helpless."

Details in the picture Mrs. Brandon has been telling were added to today by three society matrons.

As prosecuting witnesses, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Patterson, Mrs. Lillian Franklin and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Chapin, all members of the Junior League, told of their one-time acquaintance with Mrs. Brandon which they severed in 1925 when her difficulties with Mr. Gillespie first came to public notice.

The permission of entry, however, is hinged upon agreement by the nuns not to violate religious laws forbidding community or convent life.

RICH MEN END CHICAGO CRISIS

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP)—With millions available for a pool to operate the debt-burdened local governments until July 1, at which time 1928 tax money will begin trickling into the treasury, the financial crisis in Chicago and Cook County was adjudged at an end today.

Whether or not the $74,000,000 estimated as necessary operating expenses will be fully subscribed was still an uncertainty today, but with approximately $50,000,000 assured. Efforts were doubled to get long-overdue salary checks ready by Saturday for the thousands of patient teachers, firemen, policemen, nurses and other city and county employes.

The conference arranged by Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the Citizens' Relief committee, and Lewis E. Myers, millionaire school trustee and representative of Mayor William Hale Thompson, solved the problem of how the relief funds were to be obtained.

Eighty-five bankers, business men, railroad and utility heads and manufacturers poured out their millions to be used in purchasing tax anticipation warrants through the medium of the Cook County Taxpayers' Warrant Trust.

HOOVER SEEKS NEW POWER COMMISSION

Asks Couzens, Breakfast Guest, to Press Permanent Board Issue

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission, today was ordered to prepare detailed answer to charges of maladministration against him at the end of a three-hour hearing before the Senate interstate commerce committee.

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—Shortly after President Hoover had asked Chairman Couzens of the Senate Interstate Commerce committee to push legislation to make the power commission a permanent body, F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the commission, testified before the committee that charges against them were "absolutely baseless."

Dissension in the commission has been aired this week at hearings before Couzens' committee.

ACCUSED BY TWO

Charles Russell, commission solicitor, and William King, accountant, have testified that public utilities included illegitimate items in valuation lists submitted to the commission. They accused Bonner of favoring the "power interests."

President Hoover had Senator Couzens, leader in the Senate for a unified power commission with a supervisory control, as a guest for breakfast at the White House today and discussed the subject at length.

The President in his message to Congress recommended that a full time and permanent power commission, organized along the lines of the Interstate Commerce Commission, be created by legislation.

He told the Michigan senator today that the power commission as it is now constituted of three cabinet officers was of no particular value either as an advisory or as a regulatory body.

BONNER ON STAND.

Secretary Bonner, a slender gray-haired man, spoke calmly as he took the stand today before the committee but hardly had he begun to read a statement before Senator Wheeler, Democrat, interrupted to ask if it had been prepared in advance. Bonner answered that it had been because he had no assurance tha the would be permitted to testify.

Bonner said it had developed that a large part of the commission cost determination work could be absorbed by the staffs of the War, Agriculture and Interior departments, asserting the results were more trustworthy than if an accountant were sent out from Washington.

"Naturally," he added, "this disturbs some personal ambitions and the plan encounters opposition in the accounting division."

FULLER CHARGE OF CORRUPTION TO BE HEARD

Legislative Body Sets Next Wednesday for a Hearing, as Prescott Asks Probe

The rules committee of the Legislature will hear next Wednesday the petition of Rep. John P. Connolly of Boston, asking for an investigation of alleged insinuations by former Governor Fuller that corruption exists in the spending of money by the Republican State committee.

The investigation is backed by Francis Prescott of Grafton, former chairman of the state committee, who said that his personal reputation was at stake.

"I not only favor the investigation, but I also demand it," said Prescott. "Undeniably the charges refer to my committee because the current committee has not yet engaged in a campaign demanding any expenditures of money."

Prescott further stated that the committee, rather than having anything to conceal, welcomed the widest sort of publicity.

"It is true," he said, "that the Fuller charges were vague and indirect, but they must not be permitted to go unchallenged lest the voters of the party lose confidence in their leaders. If there is any information in his possession, he must be compelled to reveal it.

"Corruption is an ugly word and we cannot stand idly by and permit such charges to be made with reckless abandon."

The present chairman of the committee, Amos L. Taylor of Belmont, has refuted the Fuller charge, and Frank H. Foss of Fitchburg, former member of the committee, has revealed that Fuller complimented the committee on 1922 and 1924 victories.

U.S. ORDERS CUT IN RAIL COAL RATES FOR N. E.

Eastman Dissents From the I. C. C. Decree on Fuel Sent Over New Haven Lines

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—Interstate rates on tidewater bituminous coal in carloads from ports served by the New Haven, the Central Vermont and the Boston & Albany Railroad to local destinations on those lines in New England were held unreasonable today by the Interstate Commerce Commission and a reasonable basis of rate prescribed.

The new rates apply to bituminous coal originating either at West Virginia or Pennsylvania mines, transported by rail to Atlantic ports between Hampton Roads and New York, then loaded into vessels and transported to New England ports, where it is again taken over by the railroads.

These ports are: Boston, Providence, New Haven, New Bedford, Allyn's Point, Bridgeport, Fall River, Norwich, New London and Hartford.

Dissenting, Commissioner Eastman said that up to 40 miles the scale progresses at eight cents for each five miles, then changes to four cents until the end of the scale is reached at 200 miles.

Inasmuch as the average haul on the New Haven was only 23.7 miles, Eastman said the result was to fix relatively high rates for the shorter hauls, great bulk of the movement, and relatively low rates for the longer hauls, not of much consequence.

Charges New Coal Rates May Be Increase

In commenting upon the dispatches from Washington today to the effect that the Interstate Commerce Commission has rendered a decision on the question of New England tidewater coal rates, Edward L. Hefron, secretary of New England Traffic League, said that, from the meagre information available, it would appear that rates for the transportation of bitumunous coal from New England tidewater ports served by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R.R., B. & A. R.R. and Central Vt. Ry. to interior points of consumption will be somewhat increased, although a positive statement to this effect is impracticable because of lack of definite basis for comparison.

He said: "Assuming that the Associated Press dispatch is correct, the decision of the commission overrules the recommendation of Examiner Paul O. Carter, to the extent that the progression in five-mile blocks up to 40 miles is 8c. rather than 5c., as recommended by the examiner.

"For example, whereas the examiner recommended for distances of 25 miles a rate of 90c. per gross ton, the commission prescribes a rate of $1.02. In the case of the movement of this coal from Boston to Worcester via the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, a rate of $1.30 per gross ton is prescribed in lieu of an existing rate of $1.20.

"Inasmuch as the majority of this tidewater coal moves from the ports to interior points not more distant than 50 miles, the decision is not regarded as favorable, because of the 8 cent progression which obtains in the 40-mile area.

"Commissioner Eastman apparently holds this same view, as he has dissented from the opinion of the majority, saying the result was to fix relatively high rates for the shorter hauls and low rates for the longer hauls, which are of not much consequence in New England.

"Before a complete authentic statement of the economic effect upon New England could be made, it would be necessary to read the decision in its entirety, as it is possible there may be contained provisions which would affect the adverse effect indicated by the scant information which is now at hand."

DANGEROUS N.H. CONVICTS WENT TO THE MOVIES

Concord, N. H., Feb. 20—Henry Hobbs, escaped criminal, and other hardened convicts, sane and insane, were permitted to attend public moving picture shows here, according to a report submitted by Atty.-Gen. Ralph Davis after an investigation of the New Hampshire State Hospital ordered by Governor Tobey following Hobbs' escape a month ago.

The report, which includes the attorney-general's recommendation for legislative action caused consternation in this section when it was revealed that "serious and dangerous conditions" existed at the institution.

HOBBS FLED JAN. 10

Hobbs escaped from the hospital January 10 and his departure was not known to the authorities until 24 hours after he had walked out of the building. He is still at large.

The attorney-general was assisted in his investigation by Councillor Dr. William H. Leith of Lancaster, and together they reported the conditions there as "antiquated, insufficient and constituting a dangerous menace to society."

"Our investigation has shown," the report read, "that several criminal and insane convicts have escaped from the institution. While recommending legislative investigation, we wish to point out that Supt. Charles H. Dolloff or any other official of the hospital is not to blame."

FAULT OF STATE

It is the fault of the state in not providing suitable facilities for handling the 1700 inmates that has led to the serious and dangerous conditions now existing there.

The report shows that out of the 1700 inmates more than half are women and that 50 per cent of the several hundred criminal insane occupy barred wards because of the lack of room.

Immediately upon receipt of the report Gov. Tobey ordered the board of trustees of the hospital to meet at his office tomorrow.

1100 Passengers Were Rescued in This Wreck

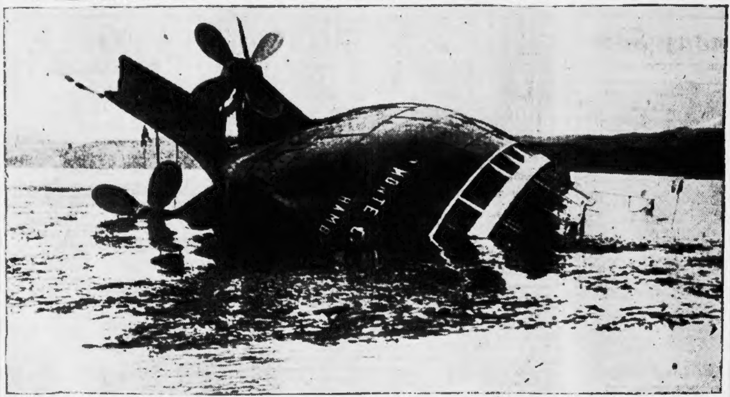

Photo shows the sinking of the Hamburg-South American liner Monte Cervantes, which struck on submerged rocks in the Beagle channel, Tierra del Fuego, Argentina. The Cervantes carried 1100 passengers and a crew of 300, all of whom were saved by the Argentine patrol boat Vincent Feidel Lopez, which picked them up from the ship's boats. The only person lost was the captain, who was on the bridge when the ship made its final lunge and turned over. (Associated Press photo.)

URGES CRUSADE COUNCIL

The perfected plan for a permanent organization to be called the youth crusade council will be announced at tonight's meeting of the youth crusade being conducted at the Park Street Congregational Church by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling.

Dr. Poling, at a meeting last night denounced the new humanism and its "logical conclusion," militant atheism, in his address. He said:

It is easy to erect a modern school building, but changes in an educational system wait on a Horace Mann, a Johns Hopkins, a Mary Lyon.

Government is captured by venal interests and remains in chains until some John Purroy Mitchell sets it free. International relations stumble on through the darkness of age-old traditions until a Woodrow Wilson brings it a torch.

What of behaviorism? Certainly it has basic elements of truth—else it would have no appeal for any mind. It is pyrites—fool's gold. It glitters with the eyes of a tiger. By its own test it fails in two directions. You cannot experience every motion—not even once. There are habits of Christian faith and practice against which behaviorism is an insuperable barrier.

Brookline to Spend 4 Millions in 1930

Brookline plans to spend $4,211,511.18 during the coming fiscal year, according to the budget in the town warrant which will be acted on March 18. Proposed salary increases total $12,084.01.

The sum of $256,800 is recommended for construction of new streets in the southern part of the town, $415,000 for building a new William H. Lincoln school, $41,000 for furnishings for the new Lawrence school, $72,500 for construction of a new fire house in Chestnut Hill, $26,000 for purchase of a new ladder truck, $27,000 for an addition to police headquarters and $12,000 for improvement to Brookline field.

Pleads Guilty in Theft from Bank

Brockton, Feb. 20—Chester L. Wells, 39, former treasurer of the People's Saving Bank here, pleaded guilty in superior court to a charge of larceny of $12,000 of the bank's funds.

He had previously entered a plea of not guilty. Disposition was set for next Monday by Judge John M. Gibbs.

Trades Body of Slain Boy for Liquor

Wooster, O., Feb. 20 (INS)—In a signed confession, Charles Hannah said he murdered four-year-old Melvin Horst and then gave over the boy's body to an Akron bootlegger and another man for 25 gallons of liquor, authorities revealed today.

The confession says that Hannah committed the actual killing but at the instigation of the Akron man, who he said wanted the boy killed as a way of letting Roy Horst, the boy's uncle, then marshal of Orrville, "know I wanted him to stop interfering" with bootleg activities.

Akron, O., Feb. 20 (INS)—A man who is alleged to be a local bootlegger, was arrested here today by Deputy Sheriff John Kiener of Wayne County and Akron police in connection with the Melvin Horst mystery.

Although secrecy surrounded the arrest, it was believed the man was named in the confession of Charles Hannah, 61, made after a week of grilling.

FUND URGED BY FITZGERALD

"What is needed in Massachusetts is a new governor, and I propose to take the job," John F. Fitzgerald told the House committee on ways and means when he appeared in favor of an increased appropriation for band concerts in the metropolitan district.

According to the former mayor of Boston, the state has been too "stingy" in the expenditures of money for band concerts and for other recreational purposes in recent years.

Fitzgerald said that the state has not made proper provision for celebration of the tercentenary of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and expressed his gratitude that the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs had recommended the increased band concert appropriation, as something at least in the way of a contribution to the celebration.

There was no opposition to the band concert bill and the committee will probably report in favor of it within a few days.

Snowden to Offer Budget April 14

London, Feb. 20 (AP)—Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, informed the House of Commons today that he would introduce the budget on April 14. Former Premier Stanley Baldwin asked if Snowden adhered to his resolution to make no statement regarding the McKenna and safeguarding duties until April 14.

"I will make no declaration before the budget is introduced," Snowden replied.

Governor Denies Plea of Snooks

Columbus, O., Feb. 20 (AP)—Governor Cooper today denied Dr. James H. Snook a stay of execution from his death sentence for the slaying of Theora Hix.

SALE OF VESSEL IS VACATED

Judging from the opinion handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, the form of order under which libeled vessels have been sold under Federal Court decrees here since 1916 probably will undergo a radical change.

The practice has been to sell the vessels at public auction. In case the highest bid did not reach two-thirds of the estimated value of the vessel, the sale has not been considered valid, unless approved by the court.

The present form of order is interpreted by the Circuit Court of Appeals to preclude acceptance of any bid of less than two-thirds the appraised value of any vessel offered for sale. It likewise denies the right of the District Court to confirm any lesser bid.

United States Marshal William K. Keville, it is understood, is to confer with justices of the District Court regarding revision of the wording of the form to conform to the ruling of the Circuit Court.

The decision was made as a result of the sale of the Nancy II for $4500, the vessel being appraised for $12,000. It was held by the Circuit Court that no bid of less than $8000 should have been accepted, and the District Court erred in confirming the sale for $4500. The sale was, therefore, vacated.

Favor $80,000 for Radio Flying Guide

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—The Johnson bill proposing construction of an $80,000 constant frequency monitoring radio station was reported to the Senate today by its commerce committee.

Selection of the site would be left to the secretary of commerce, who is understood to favor Grand Island, Neb.

Petrova Likes U. S., but Beer Is First

New York, Feb. 20—Olga Petrova, of the stage, prefers Europe to the United States.

Upon arriving from abroad, she explained it this way: "I like beer, good Parisian beer. I like beer better than the whole United States, which I like a lot."

FRANCE HONORS YALE'S CHIEF

New Haven, Feb. 20—The decoration of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor awarded by the French government upon President James Rowland Angell of Yale University and Dean Wilbur L. Cross of the graduate school, was conferred by Paul Claudel, ambassador of France, to the United States, prior to the delivery by him of the Francis Bergen memorial lecture.

The ceremony was in the office of President Angell in Woodbridge hall, where a few guests had gathered to meet the ambassador.

Off to Find Old West With Burro and Dog

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 20 (AP)—Frank J. Mullen, an Eastern tenderfoot, is somewhere out on the endless plains of the southwest today with a pack burro and a police dog as his only companions.

He set out from here much in the same manner as the picturesque old "sourdough" of another day, clad in boots, blue jeans and a lumberjack's shirt.

He was carrying a bedroll, cooking utensils, provisions, a rifle, a pickaxe and shovel in the burro pack.

"They told me the old west has disappeared," said Mullen as he started on a prospective 2500-mile trek across New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado.

"I'm going to see if I can't find it and I'm going out just as the old sourdoughs did. I'm going to knock along, picking at rocks, shooting tin cans, laying over when I want to, cook my own grub, sleep out in the open and forget about shaving."

Unlike the picturesque prospectors of the old West, Mullen is seeking neither fame nor the fortune in gold that lies in the hills of the western country.

The light-haired lanky young man is seeking to regain the health he lost through strain of overwork as a steel salesman in Detroit.

"If I'm not well by the time I finish my trip," vowed the dauntless tenderfoot, "I'll just start over again."

WOMAN SLAYER SENTENCED TO BE HANGED

Florence, Ariz., Feb. 20 (AP)—Found sane by a jury in Superior Court here, Mrs. Eva Dugan, 52-year-old housekeeper, today waited in the death cell of the Arizona State Prison, clinging to only faint hope that an appeal will spare her from mounting the gallows tomorrow.

She was convicted of the slaying in 1927 of A. J. Mathis, aged Tucson rancher.

Only one chance remained by which she may escape being the first woman to die on the scaffold in Arizona. Advised that the jury in their client's sanity hearing was divided in its verdict, 9 to 3, attorneys for Mrs. Dugan prepared an appeal to the State board of pardons and paroles asking reconsideration of a recent refusal to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Lin B. Orme, chairman of the board and Atty. Gen. K. Berry Peterson, member, said last night they could see no reason to intervene. C. O. Case, the third member of the board, could not be located. The board may meet today for consideration of the appeal.

After the verdict had been read, the condemned woman walked from the court room. She sobbed for the first time as she walked haltingly down the cell-lined corridor to the death chamber. In her cell she gave way to hysteria, necessitating a call for the prison physician.

After her nerves were quieted, she sewed a bunch of artificial flowers on the silk, bead-covered shroud she had prepared for herself and later wrote several farewell letters to relatives.

"Necking" O. K. in Chicago Theaters

Chicago, Feb. 20 (INS)—The law today extended its sanction to the custom of "necking" in cinema houses. A jury in circuit court decided that this particular pastime is not objectionable and returned a verdict for $1250 in favor of Mrs. Ruby Dogert, 27, against the Crawford Theater.

Mrs. Dogert and her husband, Peter, charged they had been forcibly ejected from the showhouse after they were warned not to "neck."

Worcester Catacomb Puzzles All Experts

Worcester, Feb. 20—Search of records and probing of historians has failed to solve the mystery of Worcester's underground rendezvous of several channels or tunnels and 30 rooms.

While it was known in some quarters of the existence of the underground labyrinth of rooms similar in many respects to the Catacombs of ancient Rome, no thorough inspection of the subterranean apartment was made until this week.

Persons who entered the underground from an entrance in the cellar of the Bay State Hotel, at the corner of Main and Exchange sts., said that the labyrinth of tunnels and rooms covers an entire city block.

With the exception of an old rusty bath tub no household furniture was found or was there any evidence of skeletons.

Some persons who have inspected the underground apartment surmise that it was probably used at one time to harbor slaves or was probably used 70 or more years ago when the Bay State Hotel was erected as servant quarters.

There is no outlet except a small aperture which leads to the Worcester Theater. This is so small that a man would have difficulty in crawling through.

Prof. Waldo Cutler of the Worcester Historical Society and an authority on local history, said he will delve into the history of the underground abode.

Coolidges Going to Catalina Isle

U. S. IS TRAILING ALIEN 'RACKET' RING' HERE

Secret investigation of the alleged alien-racketeering ring in Boston, undertaken by federal investigators, is expected to bring results within a few days.

Oscar U. Dionne, special assistant to the U. S. attorney and in charge of the alien ring investigation, has sought evidence of aliens being "held up" for money by the alleged ring. Dionne, however, uncommunicative declined discuss the inquiry.

Charges that the alleged ring has obtained from $200 to $1400 piece from aliens with the promise of quick naturalization were originally made by Herbert B. Harris, Boston attorney and former chairman of the Republican city committee of Cambridge. Later it was learned that Henry Nicolls, chief naturalization examiner for the New England district, was conducting a personal investigation into the charges.

HOOVER INTERESTED

The investigation by the U. S. attorney's office follows closely a letter sent to President Hoover by Attorney Harris, outlining the situation in Boston and suggesting presidential action. Harris received a reply from President Hoover which said that his communication had been turned over to Secretary of Labor Davis. A short time later Dionne began his investigation, it has been learned.

It is known that Dionne has interviewed several persons regarding naturalization cases and has asked Attorney Harris to confer with him in Attorney Tarr's office.

Meanwhile, Attorney Harris, impatient at the slow progress of the investigations, has circulated a petition protesting against the extortion of money from aliens and the alleged intimidation by Nicolls of witnesses who have information about the ring.

Harris declares he will petition Senator David I. Walsh suggesting that a senatorial investigation be made.

MYSTERY OVER "RING"

Examiner Nicolls and Harris are in agreement that aliens are being "held up" but are at odds as to who is behind the alleged ring. At one stage of the controversy Raymond F. Crist, U. S. commissioner of naturalization, issued a statement from Washington expressing full confidence in Nicolls.

Robe Carl White, Assistant Secretary of Labor, declared at Washington that his department has no connection with the investigation which is being conducted by the U. S. attorney's office here. He said that his department had received several communications from Atty. Harris, but declined to acknowledge that President Hoover had turned over a recent letter from the Boston attorney to Secretary of Labor Davis.

Asked as to whether or not Henry Nicolls, chief naturalization examiner for the New England district, is conducting an investigation, White replied "he is always conducting investigations because that is part of his job."

Since his impeachment, Ferguson has been a candidate for United States senator and ran for President on the American party ticket, a party of his own. Later he returned to the Democratic party.

MUSCLE SHOALS PUBLICITY FUND IS REVEALED

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, testified today before the Senate lobby committee that the American Cyanamid Company had paid for distributing publicity prepared by him in regard to Muscle Shoals legislation.

Previously Gray had testified that he had been authorized by the federation to advocate the proposal of the Cyanamid Company to lease the power and nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals.

Explaining the arrangement, he told the committee the publicity referred to was handled more than two years ago by the National Agricultural Publishing Company. He added that he did not know what it cost until W. B. Bell, president of the Cyanamid Company, testified recently before the House military affairs committee that the expense was $7000.

The publicity, he testified, advocated the Cyanamid Company proposal.

Gray was asked why he had not told this to the Senate agricultural committee two years ago when questioned by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska. He replied that he thought questions concerning the publicity should be answered by the publishing company handling the publicity.

INCOME TAXES FAR BELOW ESTIMATE

Washington, Feb 20—Income tax collections for the year ending June 30 will fall far short of the $2,480,000,000 estimated by the Treasury Department at the time the 1931 budget was sent to Congress last December.

Officials pointed out today that $80,000,000 would be lost by the 1 per cent tax reduction on the normal tax of corporations and individuals, while a substantial loss is anticipated from the stock market crash and business decline at the end of 1929.

Whether the tax reduction, which applied only to incomes of 1929, can be recommended to Congress for incomes of 1930 has not yet been determined. This depends upon two factors:

1—Business and industrial activity in 1930.

2—Losses sustained by the Government by the decline in stock prices and the business let-down in late 1929.

As to business, it is simply a waiting "problem." So far there has been a slight pickup from the last months of 1929, although it has not greatly influenced Government revenues.

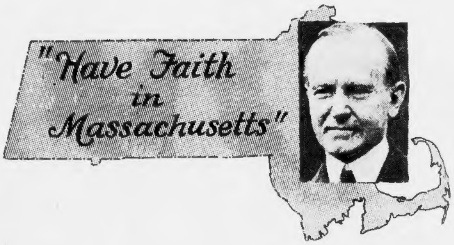
Why Coolidge Said ....



"It appeared to me in January, 1914, that a spirit of radicalism prevailed which unless checked was likely to prove very destructive.

"It consisted of the claim in general that in some way the government was to be blamed because everybody was not prosperous, because it was necessary to work for a living.

"In taking the chair as President of the Senate I therefore made a short address, which I had carefully prepared, appealing to the conservative spirit of the people. I argued that the government could not relieve us from toil.

"The address has since been known as 'Have Faith in Massachusetts.'"

What Makes a Flag Crux of Dispute

New Bedford, Feb. 20—A difference of opinion as to what legally constitutes an American flag created a furore here in police and military circles, when a window display in which the red, white and blue was used prominently to advertise a Battery E dance in the store formerly occupied by the H. C. Talbot Co., came under the ban of Patrolman Harry Fowler.

The question is still an open one, but the decoration about the radio has been removed.

Jean S. Millette, first lieutenant of Battery E, 241st Coast Artillery, harbor defense, acting commander of the battery in the absence of Capt. Richard Hotle, requested John K. Blair, the decorator, to take down his bunting, flags or representations of the flag, when the controversy came to his attention.

He did not attempt to rule on the merits of the case, but said he did not care to have the dispute go on.

N. H. COUNCIL APPROVES BRIDGES

Concord, N. H., Feb. 20—Handing the State one of its greatest political surprises in years, Governor Tobey announced that his council had unanimously confirmed his nomination of H. Styles Bridges of this city to the New Hampshire Public Service Commission to succeed John W. Storrs, chairman, whose term expired last June.

Endorsement was made at a regular council meeting at the State House, the Chief Executive said. On three different occasions since last May, the council had by unanimous votes turned down the Bridges appointment.

Other than to declare that he was "much pleased" by the council's action, Governor Tobey declined to comment on the matter.

Bridges, for years a leader of the Republican progressive wing, said he was "as surprised by the action of the council as anyone."

Political observers, having no satisfactory explanations from any of the principals involved to go by, saw a new motive in the sudden change in sentiment among the five councilors, William H. Leith of Lancaster, Harry Merrill of Exeter, Harry L. Holmes of Henniker, Henry D. Hopkins of Keene and C. J. Belanger of Manchester.

In the words of one recognized leader, "Bridges was probably put on the commission to get him out of the coming gubernatorial campaign." Bridges had been scheduled to head the forces of former Governor John G. Winant in a campaign next fall to win another term, as opposed to George Morrill, standard bearer of the conservative G. O. P. wing.

Atty.-Gen. Ralph W. Davis administered the oath of office to Bridges and Governor Tobey at the same time announced he had appointed Commissioner Mayland Morse to the chairmanship.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Kosentry, crumpled lifeless at the wheels of the carriage with two bullets in her body. Her husband, Peter, fell a few feet away with a bullet in his chest. A revolver was found in the hand of the wife. Another gun was at the side of Kosentry.

To Reward Girl Who Gave Alarm of Fire

Fitchburg, Feb. 20—Meritorious service rendered by Miss Clyda L. Marden, veteran telephone operator at the Leominster telephone exchange, living in Blossom st., this city, during a serious fire in Leominster will not go unrewarded.

Miss Marden was at work at her switchboard early Tuesday morning when lights began to flash on the board. She investigated and found that the lights came from the Nickerson Block, next to the exchange. Miss Marden gave the alarm for a fire which caused damage estimated at $100,000.

Predicts Danger From Film Blasts

Chicago, Feb. 20—A warning that many communities are in danger of disaster similar to that which recently cost so many lives in the Cleveland, O., clinic fire, was sounded here by Dr. P. F. Butler, radiation expert, of Boston, in a paper read before the educational council of the American Medical Association. Fumes given off by X-ray films that exploded and burned were blamed for the Cleveland disaster.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG!

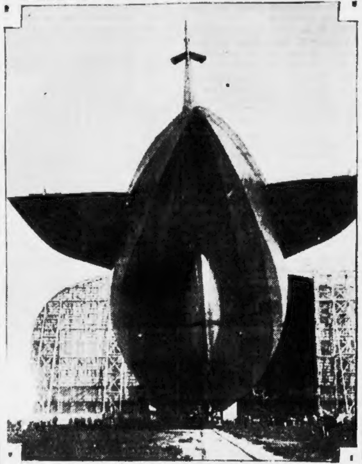
The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Epic of the Air in Film



The giant dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, shown as she was being placed in the hangar at Lakehurst at the end of her epic round-the-world flight. A talking film of the great Hearst-Zeppelin adventure, which pictures the course of the great airship, the greetings of the cities over which she passed and presents the chief figures in the outstanding aerial accomplishment of the age will be shown for a full week at the Repertory Theater, beginning Sunday. (International Newsreel photo.)

Old Ironsides Timber for Seamen's Church

A nine-foot breast hook of white oak from the United States Frigate Constitution will be built into the walls of the Chapel of Our Saviour, of the Seamen's Church Institute now nearing completion in New York.

The gift is from the United States Navy through Commander Marion Eppley, U. S. N. R., and was shipped from the Boston Navy Yard last week.

The acquisition of the breast book, which is 11 inches thick, was made possible by the fact that in reconstructing Old Ironsides it will be necessary to renew the breast hooks because they have suffered fractures after their long years of service, although they were made of solid live oak.

The breasthook is a V shaped timber connecting the timber of stringers of opposite sides where they run into the stem.

The year that its commander, Isaac Hull, died in 1843, was the year in which the Seamen's Church Institute of New York was founded.

Dr. Archibald Mansfield, superintendent of the institute for the past 31 years, is related to Commander Hull.

Alumnae Hall Plan Launched at Tufts

The Association of Tufts Alumnae is formally launching its Alumnae Hall project this week. The building, which is designed by Andrews, Jones, Biscoe & Whitmore, of Boston, is estimated to cost from $75,000 to $100,000.

It is to be made a memorial to the founder and first president of the association, Ruth Capen Farmer, who died in 1921. Mrs. Farmer was the daughter of Dr. Elmer H. Capen, president of Tufts College from 1875 to 1905.

Woman Missionary Sails for Far East

Augusta, Me., Feb. 20—Miss Bessie Craig of this city, for the last five years an orphanage missionary in China, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Marcia M. Jones, at Sewall st., and her brother, Walter C. Craig, at Greenville Junction, Me., sailed from Vancouver, B. C., on her return trip to China. She will assume her work in another field, far inland at Hunan, China.

GRAF ZEPPELIN WORLD FLIGHT HERE IN FILM

You weren't fortunate enough, of course, to make the round-the-world trip on the Graf Zeppelin, but beginning next Sunday at the Repertory Theater in the Back Bay you may sit in and go on the aerial journey by sight and sound.

At 2 p. m., Sunday, the first showing of the talking picture "Around the World via Graf Zeppelin" will take place—and back of the film will be invisibly recorded the feats of one cameraman who risked his life countless times to secure choice shots.

On the film are recorded the sounds accompanying the departure on the globe-girdling flight, the welcome of the crowds in the various cities over which the Graf Zeppelin passed, and the greetings at Friedrichshafen, Tokio and Los Angeles, where landings were made.

Boston is allotted one week for the film, the last showing to be Saturday, March 1.

In the film, and with its accompanying sound, the theater-goer is treated to a thrilling entertainment that is the nearest thing to being aboard the huge Zeppelin.

Robert Hartman, who photographed the details of the sensational voyage for the Hearst newspapers and for Talking Picture Epics, risked his life countless times to secure the excellent shots and sequences making up the whole.

Commander Hugo Eckener, who commanded the Graf Zeppelin in its 11-day around-the-world cruise, speaks in the film, as well as Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, U. S. N., official United States observer; Lady Grace Drummond Hay, only woman among the 20 passengers, and President Hoover.

To take the difficult shots, Hartman carried his camera outfit to the top of the dirigible as it droned above the clouds. Clinging to rope ladders he shot many hundred feet of film from below the gondolas which house the motors.

From bow to stern, from top to bottom, inside and out, the Hearst cameraman ground out his footage of film on the first globe-encircling aerial flight with a lighter-than-air ship in history.

You will enjoy the aerial talkie. And remember that it starts on Sunday at 2 p. m.

Students Attend Fire Clad in Bathrobes

Harvard and Radcliffe students hastily attired in bathrobes and other negligee, attended a fire which broke out in the Alsco lunch in Massachusetts ave., Cambridge. The loss was slight although thick smoke pouring out of the building attracted large crowds and caused a traffic tie-up in the vicinity. Deputy Fire Chief Cutler L. Vose attributed the cause of the fire to a carelessly discarded cigarette.

Cleaver Slayer Gets 12 Years

Providence, Feb. 20—Vincenzo D'Ambra, 54, convicted of hacking his wife nearly to death with a meat cleaver, was sentenced today in Superior court to 12 years in State prison.

SAYS 85 P. C. OF ILLICIT DRUGS IMPORTED

New York, Feb. 20 (INS)—One out of every three prisoners sent to the federal penitentiary have been sentenced for violation of the narcotic law, U. S. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle, chairman of the narcotic survey committee, today told the annual conference of committees of the world conference on narcotic education.

The findings of the survey committee have been forwarded to the Wickersham enforcement commission. The report said that 85 per cent of illicit drug traffic came from foreign countries with the chief sources of the supply passing through the port of New York.

"Over 50 per cent of all drug traffickers arrested have had previous convictions for felonies," said Tuttle. "Seventy-five per cent have been previously convicted of misdemeanors and 80 per cent have been under arrest before.

"It shows that drug addiction is essentially a crime-breeding problem. The huge profits of the traffic and the tremendous supply required attracts the criminal element. The average addict pays from $2 to $6 a day for drugs, this outlay in itself proving a tremendous incentive to crime."

Tuttle said that drug addiction in itself is a pathological condition and should not be regarded as a crime.

Guatemalan Bandits Kill 15

Mexico City, Feb. 20 (INS)—Fifteen persons have been killed in the state of Campeche by a gang of bandits from Guatemala, according to reports today.

Wife's Spine Faulty; Doctor Wins Divorce

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP)—To those who understand the meaning of the words, this may mean something. The one point that seems absolutely clear is that Dr. William Parker, a chiropractor, was granted a divorce because his wife's backbone was faultily constructed.

The chiropractor stated his case to Judge Lynch this way:

"That part of the mesoblast near the notochord forming the primitive segments in Mrs. Parker's craniata was so 'muscle-bound' that she was given frequent impulses to strike me with missiles of varying proportions.

"On March 30, 1929, it was a rolling pin, on St. Valentine's Day it was a hammer. Her vertebral aponeuros failed to respond to the touch of my fingertips."

"By which you mean to say—what?" inquired the court.

"That the fascia covering the muscles of her back in the thoracic region were not functioning properly, causing her to be irritable and hot-tempered.

"I told her when we separated last May," added the chiropractor, "that she might keep the neurocalometer in lieu of alimony, to which she agreed."

He was given a decree.

OLD AGE BILLS UP TO SOLONS

Washington, Feb. 20 (INS)—For the first time in 13 years a committee of Congress today held hearings on bills proposing the establishment of a federal system of old age pensions.

The House labor committee, which began the hearings, will investigate every phase of the question, Representative Kopp (R.) of Iowa, chairman, said.

Two bills, by Representative Sirovich (D.), New York, and Representative Connery (D.), Massachusetts, are before the committee.

The Connery bill provides an outright federal pension for needy persons over 65 years with an income of less than $5 a week. The pension would be graded from $1 to $5 a week.

Contractor Burned

Providence, Feb. 20—Donato Archetto, 6[illegible], retired Cranston cement contractor, was burned to death in a small house at 341 Union ave. when an oil stove was accidentally tipped over and exploded.

Maine Man Is 88

Farmingdale, Me., Feb. 20—Andrew E. Cunningham observed his 88th birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George R. Sager, on Fremont st.

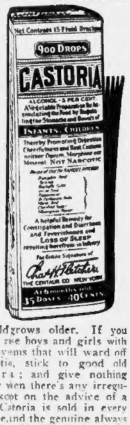
DAUGHTER OF EVERETT CRIES ON STAND

Bennington, Vt., Feb. 20—"I would so like to give the slate a good clean scrub and be on friendly relations with daddy's family," wrote Mrs. James K. Selden of Andover, Mass., to her stepmother, Mrs. Grace Burnap Everett, in April, 1928, according to a letter introduced into the testimony of Mrs. Selden in county court during the court battle over the Edward H. Everett millions."

The reference here was to May 21, 1927, when Mrs. Selden was told by her father that she was not welcome. With tears streaming down her face, Mrs. Selden described the incident when her father, weeping, told her she could not stop at her old home.

Shortly after writing the letter, Mrs. Selden went abroad and tried to call on her stepmother in Paris, but, she testified, Mrs. Everett refused to see her.

Children CRY for it



It may be the little stomach; it may be the bowels are sluggish. No matter what coats a child's tongue, its a safe and sensible precaution to give a few drops of Castoria. This gentle regulation of the little system soon sets things to rights. A pure vegetable preparation that can't harm a wee infant, but brings quick comfort—even when it is colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance.

And don't forsake Castoria as the child grows older. If you want to see boys and girls with strong systems that will ward off constipation, stick to good old Castoria; and give nothing stronger when there's any irregularity except on the advice of a doctor. Castoria is sold in every drugstore, and the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Blind Women

Many women are blind to the bad effects of cosmetics, creams and powders. They think they can make a new complexion by covering up the old. They think that pimples, blotches and coarse skin can be hidden, but the only beautiful complexion is the natural. A natural complexion loses its beauty when the skin is diseased, and it recovers its beauty when the skin is restored to health. To overcome coarseness, roughness, pimples, blotches, blemishes and irritations of the face, apply a little Cadum Ointment. In this simple manner the skin can be restored to health, and the original beauty of the complexion brought back. A nightly massage with a mixture of one part cold cream and one part Cadum Ointment keeps the skin in fine condition. Cadum Ointment is a French preparation made in this country from the original formula.

Much suffering from skin troubles may be avoided by the timely use of this wonderful remedy. It stops the itching at once and is very soothing and healing, wherever the skin is irritated or inflamed. Cadum Ointment is good for eczema, pimples, blotches, chafing, rash, ringworm, cuts, insect bits, sores, cold-sores, tetter, etc.

Letters From Readers

Crime Predominates in Opera Themes

Editor Boston American:

Noting the arguments for and against jazz being broadcast, I would like to call your readers' attention to the fact that most of the grand operas are really built up around incidents that viewed from a point of law are simply crimes.

Pagliacci: One or two murders.

Carmen: More murder plus sex itself.

Samson et Delila: Israelite gets enamoured of a demi-mondaine, and is treacherously betrayed by her into the hands of those who seek to (and do) commit mutilation to the extent of blinding, etc.

Romeo and Juliette: Double suicide.

Otello: Coolly plotted murder or so; one in anger.

Wagnerian operas seem to rank a little higher with Lohengrin, as befits the Teutonic love of decency.

Now these crime stories glorified by music and with the passage of time giving them a spurious sanctity are what really is classical music in the minds of many. Yet save for the skill with which the music is written are they really as moral as modern jazz?

Balfe's Bohemian Girl was a rather late attempt at a moral grand opera, yet in that there are but two really good bits of music, "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" and "Then You'll Remember Me," if I remember correctly.

The fact is that the grand operas of today were the real jazz of the days in which they were written, and were very often condemned by the more religious, even as jazz is today.

Another fact for modern composers to note is that the real art of music is as yet hardly found or rediscovered (since it was known very well ages ago), and this real art of music is applicable to the real problems of daily life, the problems of insanity cures, the rhythmic music of corresponding moods and the method of relieving pain through rhythmic-tone treatments, as well as musical effects on metabolism, which as yet offers an open field for composers and investigators of today.

In my remarks on prohibitionary fanatics, I do not include those good people who are honestly of the opinion that prohibition is a good thing.

There are many good people who detest drunkenness, even as I, but who differ from my way of thinking as to the remedy. I honor those who, in their honesty, stand for prohibition even as did George Beckwith, but for those who cry dry, vote dry, and leak at the luggage, I have very little use. Nor can I ignore the fact that the bootlegger and the soft drink maker both find it profitable to keep the dry laws on the books, so long as it is no crime to buy booze, though 'tis to sell it.

HARRY D. BARTON-HART.

Crime Held Due to Parental Weakness

Editor Boston American:

Professor Briggs, in his much-discussed lecture at Harvard, told his hearers that most crime would disappear if there were high schools adequate to meet the needs of the United States of today and tomorrow.

The fairy turrets of schooling, however, have less to do with making upright citizens than has the education which precedes schooling. In education we should begin at the beginning and not at the end. Until parents learn to distinguish sharply between their own legitimate responsibilities and those of outside agencies of education it will be as vain to demand ideal schools as ideal weather.

The chief source of crime and failure is the ill-guided home. The sequence of cause and effect in waywardness and crime is fairly constant: disobedience overlooked at three, defiance at seven, incorrigibility at 14, crime at 21. The mother who admits sending to kindergarten because she "cannot do a thing with him at home" is America's greatest menace.

We pay out each year several millions for judicial repression and the upkeep of prisons; that is to say, to confine those who have been badly reared or whose evil inclinations have not been corrected by sane moral hygiene before the age of seven. This simply means that the initial home education was gone about wrong or begun too late. Is it not obvious that the chief need of civilization is the preparation of parents to exercise the most important of all arts, the art of shaping the generation of tomorrow?

What ingenuity people exercise when they are on the watch for better manufacturing processes in order to obtain the maximum returns! If parents would seek with equal solicitude for good methods of education, what results might they not obtain! The Fourth International Congress on Family Education, meeting in Liege, August 4-8, will undertake to study and simplify good methods for use in the home. I shall be glad to hear from those who may be able to participate.

ELLA FRANCES LYNCH,
Chairman of American Committee, Fourth International Congress on Family Education.

Mothers' Monument Held Impractical

Editor Boston American:

Please bear in mind that the writer is an American. Lest it be supposed that he is an Anarchist, Bolshevist, or even a Socialist, remember that he is a descendant of the early settlers of New England. With a fat pocketbook, and one or two other "valuable" assets, he might perhaps have been included in the restless and fickle branch of civilization known as "Society."

But he has committed an unpardonable sin. He has dared, in these uncertain times, to turn his attention to raising a large family, instead of competing in a mad race for wealth and social distinction, and striving to outdo his neighbor, his fellow-citizen, or his fellow-countryman.

The account of the "Mothers' Memorial Monument" was read with interest. The fact that certain social leaders agreed to even donate $2000 to such an enterprise shows the trend of mind of high society.

If Washington society folks are so much interested in the "mothers" of this country, why do they not do something practical to help them? Thousands today need help. They need proper food and nourishment, they need clothes and fuel; and their families need steady employment.

Perhaps the new monument was to be dedicated to "the rich and fashionable mothers." "No others need apply." In which case, of course, it would be none of our business.

We hope that Washington society will build many new monuments, beautiful parks, and elaborate boulevards and promenades. But leave the poor mother out of it. It is an insult to erect such an edifice to her memory, while she is slaving, sacrificing, suffering, and enduring, to bring up the future brains and brawn of the American nation, and bring them up right.

A FAMILY MAN.

Job Hunter Finds Facts Are Puzzling

Editor Boston American:

It is true, as one writer states, that one American worker today produces as much as four British workers. The annual income of the American people is as great as the entire wealth of Great Britain and is five times as great as the annual income of England, nine times as great as Germany and 22 times as great as that of Italy. Why is it that there is so much unemployment in this country?

This indicates material welfare, yet poverty increases, misery stalks abroad, crime advances on account of unemployment and many other events happen that stain the pages of all this boasted wealth in this country.

SEEKING A JOB.

Jazz Enthusiast Offers Remedy

Editor Boston American:

Ladies, laymen, lovers, laborers and lunatics: We of the world cannot help being greatly amazed when we learn that one of our number comes to the front and complains about something which he is getting for nothing. Just imagine it, folks! What folly it is for one to advance a complaint on something that is entirely free!

Nevertheless, that is just what our friend from Newton, a Mr. Western, does when he complains about the excessive playing of jazz on the radio. He claims he is bored by the continual crooning and the habitual "hanging on" of our jazz leaders. He cannot stand the boisterous "boop-boop-a-doop" or the vociferous "vo-do-de-o-do." It upsets him and to his mind it is entirely unnecessary.

I have a tender feeling in my heart for sufferers who are unable to alleviate their pain, but I have absolutely no sympathy for any man who openly complains about something which he can stop instantaneously.

Mr. Western, lend me your ears! I have the secret that will put an end to your difficulties. When this jangling jazz jeopardizes your joy just jump to the radio, turn the dial, and, presto! your worries are ended. Since the expense of furnishing the music is not being placed on your charge account, how can you be the loser?

R. T. WALSH.

Allston.

Mr. Western, of Newton, with his jazz complaint, has certaingly stirred the contributors to this column. More letters have been received on his comments than on any topic for some months —Editor.

CONFESSES TO 8 WORLD-WIDE POISON DEATHS

Detroit, Feb. 20 (INS)—James Baker, 25, formerly of New York, labelled by police as a murder-maniac and wanted in several cities, today confessed to eight poison slayings in various parts of the world, according to authorities.

Baker was arrested as a robbery suspect in a lonely farmhouse near here. It was said by police he had been in hiding there for nearly a year.

A pistol with eight notches carved in the butt was found. Each notch represented a murder, it was said.

Baker is charged specifically with killing Henry Gaw, watchman in the Guggenheim Bros. laboratory, New York city, in December, 1928.

NEW YORK KILLING

Baker said he was once employed at the laboratory as a chemist's assitant and from this knowledge gained entrance to the building where he overpowered Gaw.

He forced the watchman to drink two cups of coffee in which he had placed poison, but this proved ineffective.

He then told of how he placed a bit of poison on the end of the muzzle of his revolver and forced it down Gaw's throat until the watchman lost consciousness.

The poison victims he has named besides Gaw are a sailor named Honeycutt, killed in a Houston (Tex.) restaurant, in 1924—a Hindu in Bombay, India, in 1927—an unidentified man in Hamburg, Germany, in 1926—a Filipino in Ilo, P. I., in 1928—and three shipmates on an oil tanker bound from Bayonne, N. J., to Venezuela in 1927.

WHY HE KILLED THEM

"I have a periodical desire to poison human beings and in killing them in this manner I derive a certain mental satisfaction," Baker told John D. Watts, assistant prosecutor.

"When this mania seizes me I want to kill the nearest person to me. This was true in every case except the fellow in New York. In his case I wanted to test the poison—wanted to see if it lost its strength after being exposed to air. I have noted that nearly all to whom I gave the same poison died in a similar way."

Moller's Associates Hold Dinner Party

The Moller's Associates, an organization composed of Moller's employes, had a dinner party at the Palais D'Or last night, the entire Moller personnel gathering with the purpose of making this an outstanding social event in the associates' new 1930 program. Cecil Taylor, president of the Moller Associates, was toastmaster.

"Jimmie" Gallagher was "hanging on" in great fashion and entertained with some special numbers arranged particularly for the associates.

After the Associates had dined and danced to their hearts' content, they adjourned to the Huntington Club, where a bowling match was sponsored—10 teams competing, each team being headed by one of Moller's young women.

Again?

Men don't understand; and some women are so helpless. Each month they suffer untold pain, though those times could be entirely painless. Midol will make the periodic process peculiar to women an incident; yes, even for those who have always experienced prolonged suffering! Try Midol; anticipate your time and avoid all misery or even discomfort. Or take it when the pain is at its height, and feel at ease in five to seven minutes. Midol is not a narcotic, acts directly on organs affected. Fifty cents, [illegible]

* Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

ART COLONY'S PROGRAM IS NOVEL

By MOSES SMITH

There was such an extraordinary collection of talent represented at the Benefit Concert for the MacDowell Colony, at the Statler Ballroom, that the only person lacking was a ballyhoo artist to "whoop things up."

But it was worth while waiting for the concert to start, long after schedule. For the program listed Bach's Concerto for three pianos, with Olga Samaroff, Ernest Hutcheson and John Erskine to share honors; Beethoven's Sonata in A major for 'cello and piano, played by Felix Salmond and Mr. Hutcheson; two pieces of MacDowell, transcribed for two pianos by Felix Fox, and played by Mr. and Mrs. Fox.

May Peterson sang an aria of Mozart and a group of songs, accompanied by Carl Lamson. To add to the celebrities, Philip Hale, dean oof critics, gave an illuminating as well as amusing foreword on MacDowell. And John Erskine, who does many things well, including novel-writing and university-teaching, closed the program with a talk about MacDowell Colony Life.

This was about the fullest measure we can recall in years in Boston concert halls. No wonder a large audience of society people paid high prices for their admission tickets. Indeed, it was almost too much of a good thing. After hearing an excellent performance of the Concerto and a brilliant rendering of the Beethoven Sonata, not to mention other little bits, the listener was more or less "fed up."

The most pleasurable feature of the concert was the gusto with which the performers did their stint. The only detraction from the pleasure was the inability of Mrs. MacDowell to make her scheduled appearance, on account of illness.

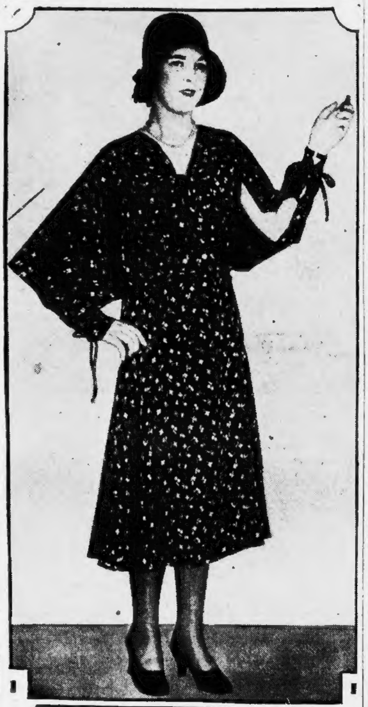
Details Decide What Frocks Are Smart For Spring

ARE you one of those people who hate details? Then look at the many clever tricks the spring mode employs to attract and hold interest, and be converted forever to those fine points of fashion that give the word "details" new meaning.

Nothing seems too small or too complicated to contribute a part to the individuality and charm of a dress, whether for sports, afternoon, or evening. And from being merely a last minute touch that was added to a costume—as a set of buttons, a frill, or bow—details have become a clever and intricate means of contributing to design.

SIGNIFICANTLY new and smart, although almost mid-Victorian in its inspiration, is the little frock pictured, fashioned on princess lines of a Directoire print, dark background, with evenly spaced little flowers, printed navy, red and white, and sponsored by Patou. The little dress is belted high, has low placed skirt fullness, and is sleeveless. Its distinguishing touch is the detachable shoulder cape, which extends to wrist length sleeves fastened by lacing, and long ends at center front.

The trig cape contributes to the frock's versatility. The hat is of felt and straw, with applique flowers of the combined materials across the brim in back.



Model from Gilchrist Co.

WHETHER or not the favorite tri-color would return with the spring sports season is a question that has been uppermost in the minds of its ardent advocates. A jacket suit that combines the gay combination of red, white and blue quickly and brightly answers that question.

The navy blue skirt with yoke and two clusters of fine pleats is worn with a smart tuck-in blouse of men's shirting and a youthful jacket of scarlet. The jacket is smartly tailored with small lapels and three pockets. The blouse wears a buttoned tab over the pleated gilet. Scarfs also indorse the tri-color combination, varying it with three tones of one color.

FRILLS and furbelows, not satisfied with invading every other fashion field, have now become part of the hitherto tailored cravat scarfs. Wide pleats distinguish this accessory, which flaunts the tri-color combination of red, white and blue. A plain band just along enough to tie about the throat allows the pleated ends to grace the front of the suit or frock, tied cravat fashion.

This plain band is a neat arrangement when the scarf is not tied but thrown carelessly about the neck. Then the pleated ends lead a graceful life of their own, unhampered by the necessity of keeping their pleats complete and in place.

PATOU seems to have a genius for doing the unusual, the unexpected. Like the perfect showman that he is, he anticipates the eagerness with which we are all looking toward spring by giving us an early taste of its charm in the new print. In this, he uses the entirely springlike lily of the valley motif. Gay green and white sprays are strewn across a background of black georgette and the effect is as refreshing as it sounds.

Then, not content with the print alone, this same clever couturier brings forth a lily of the valley corsage which sets the fashionable world thinking about artificial flowers again—and just at the moment when everyone was convinced that flowers were quite "out." This little bunch of flowers has a tremendous amount of chic—the flowers are almost as real as their fragile originals and the combination of green and white is captivating worn against black.

OF course we have been hearing much about the importance of buttons in the new mode, also the importance of scarfs. A clever designer has now employed both of these good features on a new blouse with excellent and highly novel results. The scarf starts from the sleeves and folding itself around the neck, buttons in the back with a large single button. This is the only trimming that the severely plain blouse is allowed or needs.

CRAIGIE HOUSE HISTORY TOLD BY DANA

The Andrew Craigie house's history, for nearly 50 years the Cambridge home of the poet Longfellow, was told by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana, grandson of the poet, at one of the weekly tercentenary talks in the auditorium of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, 9 Ashburton pl.

The house was erected in 1759 by Maj. John Vassal, on his coming of age and receiving a large fortune bequeathed him by his father, Dana stated.

Vassal also had a winter home facing Scollay sq. in Boston. His Cambridge house on Brattle st. was one of seven which at the period belonged to rich families, all destined to become Tories in the Revolution and to lose their estates by government confiscation.

WASHINGTON'S QUARTERS

"Jack Vassal had an aunt in each of those seven houses, and one also in the present Elmwood, which was destined to become the home of James Russell Lowell," Dana said.

While General Washington occupied the Vassal house as his headquarters during the siege of Boston he was visited there by Benjamin Franklin and by Mrs. Washington, who came from Virginia in a chariot drawn by four horses and attended by negro outriders.

After the Revolution a number of families owned the house before Andrew Craigie, who had been apothecary general in the Continental Army, bought it in the early 1790s.

He died in 1819, and his widow was living in it and keeping a few boarders connected with Harvard College when Longfellow, a young professor at Harvard, secured two rooms there which had been occupied by General Washington.

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

In 1843, two years after Mrs. Craigie's death, Longfellow became owner of the house, which has remained in the family ever since, since the poet's death, as the home of his daughter, the late Miss Alice Longfellow.

The house is open to the public every Saturday from 2 till 4 p. m., and Dana said a project is under consideration looking toward admitting the public on some other day of the week during a portion of this tercentenary year.

Notables Attend Initial Opening

More than 150 people, including prominent state officials, notables in the motion picture industry and theater managers, attended the official opening of the new projection pre-release room of the Department of Public Safety, located at Hancock and Cambridge sts.

Among those present were: Gen. A. F. Foote, Col. Sidney H. Cliffe, Maj. Patrick Healey, James Shearin, Lawrence De Cane and Thomas Dumont, representing the State, while Harry P. Campbell, Thomas B. Spry and Morris Wolf represented the film producing organizations.

Joseph H. Brennan, Victor J. Morris, John H. Devlin, J. J. Fitzgibbon, Al Somerby and Larry Bearg were among the theater managers present.

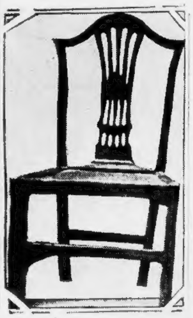
DAILY ANTIQUE

—No. 28—



The photograph of the Chippendale chair shown above was brought to the Antique Editor by Mrs. Isabelle B. Winds of 7 Ivy st., Boston, who is the owner of a set of four. The chair dates from about 1790 and has been exhibited at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. It had been loaned to the museum by its former owner, Miss Maud Atkinson of Cambridge, in whose family it had been handed down. The chair, while conforming somewhat to the Chippendale style, is undoubtedly of early American origin.

This chair will be discussed in further detail by an expert in tomorrow's American.

The [illegible] table shown yesterday [illegible] mother's [illegible] ties to adapt their household furniture to the restricted space of their first homes. Folding beds, trundle beds, gateleg tables, and all sorts of contrivances were evolved to economize floor space.

In the case of the table pictured yesterday, one half of the table fitted into the other half when the whole top surface was not needed.

The table is of painted pine, of rather crude construction, but apparently built by a good workman. It stood for more than 130 years in the ancestral home of Captain Foster, skipper of the hand-ferry which runs between Dresden and Richmond, Me. The ferry is known to thousands of tourists, and the house is located in Dresden. In the house is some interesting pine panelling.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

AIR ROUTE GRAB PROTESTED

Berlin, Feb. 20—Several South American countries will join the United States and Germany in diplomatic protest against the Portuguese leasing of Atlantic island possessions for a French trans-ocean air traffic monopoly for 30 years, it is reported here.

It was learned in Berlin that the French, in their guise of the Portuguese air traffic company, have been granted by Portugal full and exclusive rights to fly from, over or land planes on Portuguese soil, including the Cape Verde Islands and the Azores Islands, both Portuguese possessions.

The Cape Verde Islands, off the Senegalese West Coast of Africa, are almost in a direct line from Lisbon to Rio de Janeiro, while the Azores are in a line from Lisbon to New York.

Without the use of the Azores, the 12-motored Dornier DO-X seaplane, contemplating a hop to New York in the spring, would be compelled to abandon the flight.

UNDERWEIGHT DUE TO TASTELESS DIET

Often True in the Case of Children

"Get correct weight on children," says the doctor. For the underweight child is more subject to disease than the one up to standard.

However, the old saying about horses being "led to water" can be paraphrased to describe underweight children—you can lead them to food but you can't always make them eat.

In such cases, the mother or the cook must take extra pains to make the foods in the child's diet inviting and palatable. Sugar is a great aid in this respect. A dash of sugar on essential vegetables as carrots, peas, cabbage and spinach improves their flavor to a marked degree. A leading child specialist in Pennsylvania invariably suggests that tomatoes be sweetened to taste.

This recommendation should be followed even in the case of adults who are underweight. In addition to using sugar on vegetables, a sprinkling on fresh and stewed fruits, also cereal, makes them more tasty and is dietetically correct. It must also be remembered that nourishing desserts such as custards, puddings and ice creams are invaluable. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Studied 20 Years and Taught for 50

Meredith, N. H., Feb. 20—The story of a woman who studied at night for 20 years while a mill worker at Lowell, Mass., and then, nearing 40, started a 50-year career as a teacher in New Hampshire schools came to a close here with the death at 93 of Mrs. Jennie Graves.

Born at Merrimack, N. H., she moved as a girl to Lowell and started work in a mill in her teens. Ambitious mentally, she toiled over her books at night after her work at the loom was over, and thus gave herself a 20-year schooling. She became a school teacher first at Center Harbor and then at Moultonboro and was beloved in both places for her habit of taking orphan children into her home and giving them an education. She had been in ill health for the past year.

Sees All, Nose All
Washington Monument,
February 20, 1930.

ONE of the sad experiences of my life came shortly after I was married, divorced, and remarried, I came home one night, tired and hungry, after a long chase. Exhausted and nervous, I went to the kitchen, where I reached for a bottle of vanilla extract and was about to revive myself by sniffing the invigorating aroma, when I noticed a strange man under the sink.

Fortunately his back was turned. I thought quick. Surveying this intruder at a glance, I noticed a large, ugly bottle in his hip pocket with which he intended to strike me. On the floor was a grip of burglar's, or plumber's, tools. The coward had a great wrench in his hand and was attaching it to a drain pipe from the sink. Seizing a paper bag, I hastily pulled it over the intruder's head, and tied him securely.

"Say Jack Robinson!" I commanded.

Before he could answer, I had snatched the bottle and was running to headquarters to have it analyzed—but before doing so I met a friend, who suggested—

RECORD VOTE IN JAP ELECTION

Tokyo, Feb. 20 (AP)—A vote of record proportions with the total approaching 10,000,000 was indicated tonight after Japan had held its second election under universal manhood suffrage.

In Tokyo, Nagoya and other cities approximately 80 per cent of the franchise holders cast ballots. Counting of the votes begins tomorrow and the results of the election, in which the Minseito party government headed by Premier Mamaguchi sought a majority of parliamentary seats, probably will not be apparent before Saturday or Sunday.

The Minseito party, having had but 173 seats in the parliament which was dissolved a month ago, went before the voters in an attempt to overcome the majority party, the Seiyukai, which held 237 of the 466 seats in the House of Representatives.

English Feminists Now Oppose Exemption From Hanging

London, Feb. 20 (AP)—Great Britain is having a controversy over capital punishment where women are concerned. Many feminists contend, as one put it: "Women have as much right to be hanged as men."

The Women's Freedom League secretary, Miss Underwood, retorted she was strongly opposed to capital punishment, but she "would be hanged" rather than exempt women while men were not exempt.

Dr. Little's "College University" Plan Hit

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 20 (INS)—Opposition to Dr. Clarence Cook Little's plan for a university college was expressed today by President Alexander G. Ruthven, his successor at the University of Michigan. Dr. Little was formerly of the University of Maine.

The university college plan was one of President Little's most bitterly fought innovations in education, and was one of the precipitating causes of his resignation from the Michigan presidency. It calls for two years of preliminary training for all university students as a basis for further study with only those of approved standing being permitted to continue their work for degrees.

INQUIRY INTO BRANCH BANKS

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—An investigation into group, chain and branch banking will be started by the House banking committee Tuesday with Secretary Mellon, or one of his assistants, and J. W. Poole, comptroller of the currency, as the first witnesses.

Other witnesses will be the governor or members of the Federal Reserve Board, representatives of Federal Reserve banks and other individuals from the banking industry.

The inquiry is expected to have a bearing on whether concentration and centralization of banking resources should be limited by law as has been demanded by some members of Congress.

C. D. of A. to Conduct Whist and Bridge

A whist and bridge party under the auspices of Court Ursula, Catholic Daughters of America, will be held in Cheverus Hall, Knights of Columbus building, Somerville, tomorrow evening.

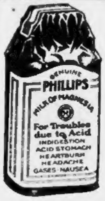
Miss Rita Bryan is hostess, assisted by the following committee: Mesdames M. L. Cotter, Nellie Corcoran, Julia Carr, Annie Cotter, Susan Conrad, Isabel Bryant, Catherine Bennett, Ellen Burk, Lauretta Barry, Marie McCue, Mary V. Sullivan, Helen Phalen, Mary E. McEvoy, G. R. Elizabeth Sullivan, Anna McNeil, Mary Carney and Hanna Neville.

Bold Thieves Abroad

Lisbon, Feb. 20—Burglary in Portugal is a daylight occupation. Police records disclose that 80 per cent of the robberies are committed during the siesta hours. Residents stay awake for most of the night because of the intense sun during the day.

Almost Sets Record

San Francisco, Feb. 20—Mayor James Rolph, Jr., seems to have gathered a record of some kind for himself. Explaining his plan for a projected war memorial before the city supervisors, he spoke for 11 hours, 9½ of which was nonstop.



Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Moderation!

THE FRIEND that prolongs your youth

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

FAMOUS STRAUSS OPERETTA BROUGHT TO SCREEN BY ANOTHER STRAUSS

"DANUBE" THEME TO NEW FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20.—I call it nothing less than a stroke of real genius for Warner Brothers to name Oscar Strauss' first original operetta "The Danube Love Song." Wasn't it Johann Strauss who wrote the never-to-be-forgotten "Blue Danube," the one that is said to have inspired more romances than any other waltz?

Everone in Hollywood has tried to pin Oscar Strauss down and make him admit that Johann is an ancestor, but he modestly denies the relationship. He is a big enough person, however, to stand on his own feet and not stand in the reflected glory of a bygone artist.

Louella O. Parsons

Joseph Jackson authored "The Danube Love Song" and Harvey Thew is writing the lyrics but the music will be the original composition of Mr. Strauss. Jack Warner who has taken a personal interest in Mr. Strauss' activities says that Warners are on the lookout for the best musical talent available for Strauss' operetta, which will not be the usual hackneyed jazz.

DO you know Joan Peers? Let's hope you do for I have heard her name so much within the last week I am beginning to think something is wrong with me because I know so little about her. She played the part of the girl opposite Helen Morgan in "Applause" and now Harry Cohn has signed her for Columbia and that means she is to have a chance. Dorothy Revier was unheard of until Mr. Cohn decided that she was a good actress. Now look at the girl, she meets herself coming and going to all the studios.

Miss Peers is to have the leading feminine role in "Around the Corner" by Jo Swerling. This, dear friends, is the talkie version of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and it will feature Charlie Murray and George Sidney. These two boys used to be the favorite Irish-Jewish team in silent pictures and their reunion at Columbia will be their first appearance together since the advent of the talkies. Bert Glennon and Patterson McNutt will direct.

ONE more Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture for Norma Shearer and then a vacation, she is not renewing her contract, which expires April 1. Norma starts work immediately on "Let Us Be Gay," a gay, sprightly play by Rachel Crothers which had such tremendous popularity on the stage. "Don't you think I am entitled to a rest," Norma said, "after six years with the same company and just one round of pictures after another?" I certainly think she is and I think she will probably return to the screen all the better for a little change. Norma just finished "The Divorcee" last week and within ten days, "Let Us Be Gay" will be in full production with cast, director and all assembled. What a play that is and how nice for Norma to end her contract in so pleasant a manner. If she decides to return to the films, and of course she will, there is no doubt she will return to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

THE prize story of the week was given me by a certain Paramount leading man. Snitz Edwards, up for a part, was looked over by three supervisors at Paramount and rejected. "What's the matter with me?" he finally asked the third one. "Well, the script calls for a big financier and a little guy like you certainly looks anything but the part." "You see that little fellow just coming through the door," answered Snitz, "well, that's Adolphe Zukor. He is about my size and he hasn't done so badly as a financier." The supervisor's reply was not made public.

• • •

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Adolphe Zukor guest of honor at a stag dinner given him by Joseph Schenck, Sid Grauman and other notables. Fine time had by all, according to the gentlemen present. Mr. Zukor, Walter Wanger, Jesse Lasky and Al Kaufman at the Brown Derby. Will Rogers back from London, exercising by flipping coins on the Fox lot. Dolores Del Rio, Larry Kent and Hugh Trevor among the film folk at the opening of "The Nut Farm," a local play. Charlie Chaplin and Leon Errol deep in discussion at Henry's. Mrs. Conrad Nagel home from Chicago, lunching at the Embassy. Hedda Hopper entertaining out of town friends at the same place. King Baggott, pioneer film actor, back on the Universal lot where he plays a role in "Czar of Broadway." That's all today. See you tomorrow!

BOSTON NATIVE TO PRODUCE LIGHT OPERA SERIES HERE

By HARRIS MORGAN

NATURALLY enough, it takes a native of Boston to put this city back into the limelight as a producing center for light opera. Milton Aborn, internationally famous producer of operettas, whose name is the synonym of the last word in musical comedy production, is the man.

• • •

ON a visit to his native bailiwick to see how his "baby," the revival of the celebrated De Koven operetta "Robin Hood," was getting on at the Majestic, Mr. Aborn told me of his plans for the future. I was put into his company by Ben Atwell, manager of the Victor Herbert Festival committee, whose voice is heard often from the Majestic stage giving the latest news on coming things to the Festival subscribers. Mr. Aborn announced that he had made up his mind to do a portion at least of his producing in Boston. He said he had long been studying this, chiefly because Boston is his home, and then also because Boston has always taken most generously to the best light opera productions. Mr. Aborn went on to say:

• • •

"THE plan will become effective at once. The personnel constituting the cast of 'Robin Hood,' now playing at the Majestic, will constitute the unit with which the experiment will be initiated. I have just cast them, with one exception, for roles in Victor Herbert's, 'The Serenade,' which immediately went into rehearsal.

"I will return to Boston Sunday to supervise the finishing touches of the preparation, and at the close of the present engagement the company will proceed to New York to open in 'The Serenade' at the Jolson Theater on March 3. After a two-weeks' presentation the company will fill a Philadelphia engagement and then will be brought to Boston to follow 'The Merry Widow' and 'The Chocolate Soldier.' It will then proceed to Chicago, where this unit will sing both 'Robin Hood' and 'The Serenade.'"

• • •

MR. ABORN will strike you as having undergone little change at the hands of Father Time. He is still the hard worker he has always been; working harder than almost anyone under his supervision. Born in Boston, he got his big boost under that master of all showmen, the late Benjamin Franklin Keith, founder of the Keith's that still prospers, and a name still to conjure with in the theater world. Did you ever think with how many things and how many careers of world famous folk Mr. Keith was connected as a sponsor? Some day we will write the story.

But back to Mr. Aborn: It was in 1886 that this last of the oldtime great producers, like himself and Henry W. Savage, of light operas, was employed by Mr. Keith to produce a new operetta weekly in Boston. In 1891 Mr. Aborn had branched out and organized a number of his own companies. In 1900 he produced grand opera in English. Since then his name has been almost a household world.

Of "Robin Hood," now at the Majestic, he had this to say:

"I have just looked in on the show. I am proud of it. This masterly work of the great De Koven demands the best treatment: I am satisfied with the way it is being given to Boston audiences."

WINNING ROLE FOR WINNIE

FOR the gala midnight pre-holiday celebration tomorrow night, the Publix Metropolitan has secured the New England premiere presentation of Winnie Lightner, of "Gold Diggers of Broadway" fame, in her latest Warner Brothers' production, "She Couldn't Say No." It is a rollicking musical comedy drama that goes through an exciting pace, with snappy dialog, catchy songs and dazzling dances, to a surprizing climax. The supporting cast includes Chester Morris, Sally Eilers, Johnny Arthur and Tully Marshall. The picture is an adaptation of the stage play of the same name, by Benjamin M. Kaye, and was directed by Lloyd Bacon.

VAUDEVILLE IS GOLD MINE OF TALENT

THE present revolutionary conditions of the theatrical business in this country—the swift and sudden predominance of the talking motion pictures, of color photography, of radio exploitation of genuine artists, prompt the timely thought that vaudeville now, as in the past, is a great and unceasing source and supply of American theater amusement.

A survey of the present transitional era of the entire theater situation in this country emphasizes the fact that vaudeville continues to be the inexhaustible mine of stage and screen entertainment. George M. Cohan, scion of a family of vaudevillians—the last of The Four Cohans—is not only one of the foremost playwrights, producers, composers and actors of comedy and drama, of musical comedy and revue, but he is also now an active factor in the latest and most amazing phase of the world of the theater—the talking pictures.

It would seem that with the advent, about a year ago, of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum, the time had arrived for a new appreciation of the Ceaseless service which vaudeville has tendered to every branch of the amusement world. The silent films were not without their recruits of beautiful women and gifted pantomimists from vaudeville. But with the perfection of sound pictures vaudeville has become a veritable Golconda of speaking, singing, dancing and comedic genius trained to the hour, tested before the smartest public and, therefore, ready for every requirement of the sound and picture films as well as for the newest and most pretentious of stage productions.

It was inevitable that the "talkies" would find their greatest store of talent in vaudeville. From vaudeville to stellar success in the sound films already have come the Ken Murrays, the Jack Oakies, the Polly Walkers, the Bert Wheelers, the Gilda Grays, the Marguerite Padulas, the Dorothy Lees, the Ned Sparks, the Betty Compsons, the Bob Woolseys, the Lina Basquettes, the Joe Cawthornes and scores of other present or oncoming favorites of the talking films.

HEART THROBS BY HUB MAN

THE man who first broadcast a heart beat on radio is now broadcasting heart throbs for Radio Pictures. He is J. A. Murphy of Boston, a graduate of Georgetown University and the Harvard Medical School, who is now one of R. H. Townsend's staff of RCA photophone records at the RKO Studio in Hollywood.

Following his graduation from the Harvard Medical School, Murphy engaged in medical research work for a time and then became interested in the uses of radio in the medical world.

"Miracles of Nature" Depicted in Movie

There is widespread interest being shown by lovers of plants and flowers in the forthcoming lecture that is to be given in Symphony Hall on February 25 at 8:15 p. m. for the benefit of the Norfolk House Center by Arthur C. The proceeds from this lecture will go to help carry on the work of the Norfolk House Center where the greatest variety of educational advantages is afforded from pre-school kindergarten work to adult courses in homecraft, music, and other arts. The motto of the center is "Better Homes and Better Citizenship."

STYLE MODES DEPICTED IN FILM

ACCORDING to Travis Banton, creator of Paramount fashions, the present mode for long skirts does not mean that fashion has turned back its pages to pre-war days. Having just completed a wardrobe for Ruth Chatterton to wear in "Sarah and Son," Banton tries to prove his contention. The first sequences of this production are laid in 1914. Miss Chatterton's frocks of this period are long, but tight, and straight, known to many as the "hobble skirt" mode. The costumes created for the the return of long skirts, but different skirts, for they are moulded to the figure, are circular and graceful at the hemlines and lend the wearer a chic dignity that the 1914 skirt failed to do.

The afternoon mode not only has returned to fashionable favor, but is one of elaborate intentions, it is evinced by the costumes worn by Lillian Roth in "Honey." Silver cloth, striped with bands of black and dull gold, fashions one gown for formal afternoon wear, while green crepe trimmed with red fox fur creates the second successful frock.

Screen Shorts

Robert Armstrong has been signed by Warner Bros. for the featured lead in "Dumbbells in Ermine," which goes into production with John Adolphi directing.

Nance O'Neil, prominent stage actress, has been added to the cast of Ramon Novarro's next picture, "The Singer of Seville," which Charles Brabin is directing. Dorothy Jordan, Renee Adoree and Ernest Torrence also are in the cast.

The following have been selected to compose the cast of Universal's "The Czar of Broadway," John Wray, Betty Compson and Johnny Harron. William Craft is directing. Gene Towne wrote the story.

Maurice Chevalier Is Paramount King Pin

Maurice Chevalier, whose ability has made him a favorite in America, has just been signed to a long-term contract. Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president, in charge of Paramount production, signed Chevalier after the latter had completed at the Long Island studios his third talking and singing picture, "The Big Pond." Under the terms of his new contract Chevalier will star in at least four new vehicles in the next two years. His next picture, "Too Much Luck," is soon to be filmed at the Long Island studio.

Chevalier, in "The Love Parade," will be screened at the Scollay Square Olympia, beginning Saturday.

RIVERSIDE CLUB OF SAUGUS FORMS JUNIOR AUXILIARY

GRADUALLY are the young girls of the Commonwealth becoming club-minded. The newest group to band themselves under the banner of junior membership in the State Federation of Women's Clubs is the Riverside Club of Saugus. And responsible for their creation is Mrs. Joseph Williams, advisor to the group.

The department of junior membership is comparatively new in the parent organization, but through the guiding genius of its chairman, Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, second vice-president of the State Federation it has grown rapidly. And now throughout the State we find groups of young girls following in the club footsteps of their mothers and relatives, that they, too, some day may enjoy the privileges, advantages and national courtesies accorded American club women.

For several years the Riverside Club of Saugus had an associate membership of 12 girls from the senior class in the high school. They have attended the senior club meetings, assisted in ushering and serving of refreshments on various occasions. The insistence that the group of girls organize independently of the parent club that they might pursue principles and ideals and schedules of their own was [illegible]

[illegible] was ever the [illegible] such suggestion despite the counsel of Mrs. Bennett that junior membership taught young girls self-reliance and afforded a new dignity and sense of leadership which could not be found in any other activity.

STOMACH ILLS

A Medical Opinion

"The ideal corrective for 'sour stomach' is calcium carbonate—a potential anti-acid, incapable of disturbing the normal action of the bowels and bladder, impossible of overdosage and perfectly safe to use."

—Your own doctor will confirm this quotation from noted medical authority.

A Powerful Anti-acid—yet Safe

Old-fashioned folks, not abreast with medical science, still take burning soda. Occasional doses may do no harm.

But Calcium Carbonate, in proper form, is the modern anti-acid: 2½ times as effective as soda, and is safe in its action and positive in its relief.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the ideal form of Calcium Carbonate combined with other valuable healing ingredients. Medical authorities commend Stuart's formula as the only kind for use with children and best for men and women.

Make This Test!

Purchase a 25c, handy pocket tin of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets from your druggist, use after meals and be convinced that it is not necessary to suffer the distresses of indigestion.

FORMER OFFICE BOYS TO HEAD CORPORATIONS

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—Two men who started out as office boys will next week assume the presidencies of $[illegible] corporations.

Edward J. Doyle, who went to work as office boy for the old Chicago Edison Company March 1, 1896, will be elected president of the Commonwealth Edison Company.

George F. Mitchell, who became an office boy about the same time, will become president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company.

Announcement of the contemplated promotions was made by Samuel Insull. These changes are being made, he said, in pursuance of a policy to bring the younger men forward in the responsibilities of executive management in all of the companies of the so-called Insull group.

Mr. Insull in announcing the changes said he would not cease to be an active executive officer himself but would give the younger men their chance. Both Doyle and Mitchell formerly were secretaries to Insull before rising to executive posts in their respective companies.

Not So Dumb by HELEN KLUMPH

How a Girl Helped Her Affianced in His Business

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming all-talking picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER 16

DULCY came up the stairs two at a time with the speed of a happy child.

Forbes glared at her.

"Oh, Mr. Forbes," she cried out in disappointment, "you haven't been looking. And you're so close, too. The clues are all around you."

Forbes looked around malevolently.

"Didn't you even notice this feather here on the floor? And match it to the feather I gave you for a clue? Why, when I put these clues down I said to myself, 'This is much too simple for a smart man like Mr. Forbes. He'll go direct to the hidden treasure and the game will be over in a minute.' I never dreamed that you would be really baffled by our little game."

Forbes was growing restive. He shuffled his feet about anxiously, and watched for a chance to interrupt.

"We've played baffle lots of times with much harder clues than this, and the stupidest people have followed them without any trouble. I'm surprised at you."

She chattered on in a gay, bantering tone, quite unnoticing Forbes' gathering fury.

"Just the other night we had such fun. We hid the cocktail shaker in the soiled-linen hamper in the closest off the butler's pantry—or was it in the laundry room? Oh, well, I don't remember exactly. But anyway, we had clues leading to false trails all over the house. Corkscrews and icepicks and lemon-squeezers and just everything. It was so complicated—it was just like one of those cobweb games where you follow a string wherever it leads and have to go all over the house before you find a prize. And that reminds me—"

But Forbes could stand no more.

"Are you going to stand there talking all night? Or are you going to show me where my daughter's pearls are?" he blurted out angrily.

"Why, Mr. Forbes!" For a moment Dulcy was crushed but her high spirits soon bounced back again.

"I was sort of holding up the game, wasn't I?" she asked brightly. "Now look here—"

As she walked along the hall she picked up one feather and displayed it to him triumphantly, then another, and on the threshold of her bedroom door another.

"See how simple it is?" she asked, but a surly grunt was her only answer.

"I'm afraid you are a very poor detective, Mr. Forbes."

Now that they were in her room he had vainly hoped that she was going to produce the pearls from their hiding place and let him go. But Dulcy just couldn't let the moment pass without a few observations.

"I always say that you never know how hard the other man's job is until you try it. Now if we had hidden anything but jewelry, I wouldn't have expected you to be terribly anxious. But when it was your own daughter's pearls I thought you would really take an interest in finding them. Don't you ever have any stock disappear in your business?" she asked earnestly, leaning comfortably back against the door and settling down for a good long talk.

"No," he bellowed. "Where are—"

But he could get no further.

"I think that is marvelous," Dulcy cooed. "With all the things and people you have around, too. I always say that I would lose my head if it wasn't fastened on."

"Where are Angela's pearls?" Forbes demanded, too weak and exhausted to say more.

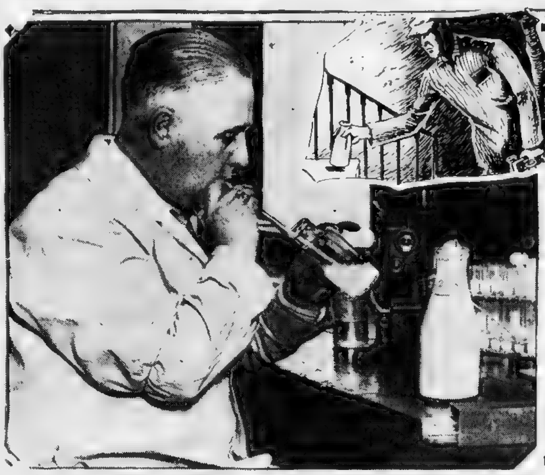
BOSTON FIGHTS FOR HOME RULE IN MILK INSPECTION

'Watchdog of Science' Keeps Milk Safe for Boston's Babies



In his little laboratory at City Hall, Dr. Fred R. Bartlett of Templeton st., Dorchester, city bacteriologist, performs a big job. To his efforts belong a large measure of the credit for the fact that Boston's milk is more nearly pure than any large city in the East. Here Dr. Bartlett is at work on one of the tests by which he locates harmful bacteria.

The bacteriologist's laboratory is equipped with all manner of instruments for the detection of infection in milk. If Dr. Bartlett discovers harmful germs, the milk company is immediately notified. Failure to remedy the condition will result in court action by the city. Dr. Bartlett's job, however, is to find the infection and determine its cause. (Staff photos.)

Hub Honors Sect That Once It Persecuted

In early Boston history the punishment for being a Quaker included cutting off the right ear, being whipped or hanged.

Today the City of Boston honored that religious group by changing a city street name.

By order of the street commissioners Congress sq., which is really not a square at all but a Y-shaped link between Devonshire, State and Congress sts., hereafter is to be Quaker Lane.

This action was a result of a petition with 90 signers led by Paul Townsend, Federal st. accountant. There was no opposition.

Quaker Lane is in the vicinity of the second Quaker meeting house in Boston, built in 1709, a site now occupied by the Monks office building owned by the National Shawmut bank. It was formerly called Quaker Lane unofficially.

At present there are about 1000 Quakers in and about Boston who meet in Andover hall, Cambridge. As is well known, President Hoover is a member of the sect, the official name of which is the Society of Friends.

Townsend told how the early Puritans persecuted the Friends by hanging them on the Common, or whipping, branding and banishing them.

"It was not for offenses against laws," explained the modern day Quaker, "but rather because of their religious views."

The University Heights debaters consist of a trio of Fulton Debating Society members. They are Edward A. Hogan, '30, of Natick; John J. Wright, '31, of Mattapan, and Edward F. Connelly, '31, of Dorchester. Harvard's representatives will be Gerald W. Harrington, '30; Armistead B. Rood, '31, and Paul C. Reardon, '32.

EASTERN DOG CLUB SHOW OPENS

1400 Highly-Pedigreed Dogs Are Entered in the Garden Show

Attracted by the exhibition of some of the world's finest dogs, a crowd estimated at about 3500 attended the opening of the 18th annual Eastern Dog Show at Boston Garden today.

The show, featuring 1400 blue ribbon dogs from widely scattered points, opened with judging events shortly after 10 o'clock.

A demonstration of the efficiency of police dogs will be given and English setters will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their field training.

Another feature will be Peggy, a mathematically inclined collie from Lynnfield who will demonstrate publicly for the first time her ability to add, subtract, multiply and divide any combination of numbers up to 15.

The English setters, cream of the show and hunting stock in America, outnumber all other breeds with 118 entries. In the fox terrier groups there are 106 representatives.

Other breeds being shown in unusually large numbers are Boston terriers, bull dogs, cocker spaniels, [illegible] Chesapeake Bay [illegible] Irish setters, beagles, collies, Irish terriers, Scotties and the perky sealyhams, as well as the pekingese and other toys.

Bellhaven kennels, of New Jersey, whose entries swept the collie field at the New York show, will have a number of dogs in the ring and more on the benches.

One of the dogs seeking honors in the wire-haired fox terrier class will have something on his rivals even if he doesn't take home a medal or ribbon.

This dog made a hurried trip by [illegible] from Chicago to compete in the Boston show. Aleck Stewart, dog fancier of the Windy City, is the owner.

GOODWIN ANSWERS CRITICS IN DEFENDING HIS AUTO FUND PLAN

MEASURE IS SUPPORTED BY MANY

Henry L. Abbott Says "Insurance Companies Have Gone Into Shylock Business"

Continuing his argument for a State fund to handle compulsory automobile insurance, Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission today brought into the discussion the name of Louis K. Liggett, Republican national committeeman from Massachusetts.

An[illegible] the [illegible] that his bill would force the [illegible] of money from [illegible] to the fund to pay expenses incurred in the first year Goodwin said

Louis Liggett and the others of the Liberty Mutual do the same thing every year. They take money away from the people in advance to prepare for an emergency."

Rep. Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, House chairman of the legislative committee on insurance, before whom Goodwin [illegible] asked the former [illegible] registrar why he intimated that the money of a mutual insurance company belonged to the company directors.

GOODWIN BACKS PLAN

"It's all the same," replied Goodwin. "The yhave that big surplus to play with as they want to."

The speaker branded as false the figures on which the special commission which recently [illegible] the workings of the present law based many of its objections to the State fund bill.

In reference to a provision in his bill designating the State treasurer as the custodian of the State fund, Goodwin [illegible] might have been a good thing if that official had been [illegible] of the funds "of some of the companies mutual companies [illegible] up."

He criticized the [illegible] contracts of the insurance companies because of a provision which allows the companies to settle claims which appear not only as groundless but as fraudulent.

Rep. Wadsworth asked Goodwin if he felt that the State runs its business well.

ARE TIRED OF TAXES

"Better than most business companies and [illegible]," replied Goodwin. [illegible] body is [illegible] to public [illegible] everybody [illegible] watching him."

At this point Rep. Carl A. Woekel of Methuen informed the committee that he had helped secure names on the Goodwin initiative petition for a State fund and that he never has heard of anyone getting paid for collecting the signatures.

Henry L. Abbott of Brighton for the Goodwin measure, questioned whether "the compulsory law was not placed on the statute books with the help of a former Governor in order to sell more of his cars and drive the small priced cars off the road."

"The people are tired and disgusted with the various taxes," he said "and the zone rate tax since."

The insurance companies, he charged had gone into the Shylock business, "a dollar down and a dollar a month."

The Socialist party, through Alfred Baker Lewis, went on record in favor of the Goodwin measure.

Thomas J. Mullin of Dorchester declared that he did not know Goodwin, but obtained 1800 signatures to the initiative petition, during which time he was [illegible] twice and in both cases [illegible] refusals came from insurance men.

Doane's Falls, a series of cascades in the town of Royalston, will be incorporated in the state reservation under a proposal before the legislative committee on harbors and public lands.

It was brought out that thousands of persons already use the site as a picnic place and would contribute to the purchase price of the land.

Senator Thomas J. Worrell of Athol and a group of residents of that section supported the measure, which would give Worcester County authority to buy the land at a cost not to exceed $10,000. It includes about 100 acres.

YOUTHS GUILTY IN RUM TRIAL GET PROBATION

Their employer, Mrs. Agnes Monahan of Fourth st., South Boston, was fined $1000 when she pleaded guilty on similar charges in Federal Court yesterday.

Following the plea of guilty, Judge Morton said: "I'll let you young men [illegible] choice of sentence. [illegible] I'll give [illegible] sentence now or suspended sentence at Atlanta."

Each youth chose the suspended sentence.

"You think you can go straight?" the court asked.

"Yes, your honor," they replied.

"If you don't I'll send each of you down for a hard labor term that you'll remember as long as you live."

Albanese was then given a suspended sentence of three years at Atlanta and placed on probation for two and one-half years and Martin was sentenced to 18 months at Atlanta.

As the pair were about to leave the courtroom, Judge Morton said: "I want to tell you two men that I gave the same option to another man. He thought he would go straight. He didn't and now he must be sent to Atlanta for five years of hard labor."

With the [illegible] to be competed for the New England senior low springboard diving title, the 50-yard New England free-style junior championship, both for women, and the national A. A. U. 500-yard free-style crown for men, thrilling contests are looked for.

Baseball candidates will start work at Everett next week when the batterymen report for indoor [illegible] Everett has a hard baseball schedule this spring and the early start will [illegible] the boys off [illegible] in perfect shape.

School [illegible] coaches are divided [illegible] in opinion as to the advisability of early indoor baseball work. Some of the successful coaches say that an early start is necessary if the boys are to be in proper shape at the opening of the schedule.

Tom F[illegible] of Brookline, and Charles Dickerman, of Somerville, who have started many boys on the path to baseball fame, think that a few days in the outdoors are worth more than weeks of indoor practice.

Ernie Goglia of East Boston high will race over the low sticks in the Andover school meet. University of Ottawa finished fourth with seven points.

Garden Offers Rink to Schools in 1930

The Boston Garden has offered the Interscholastic Hockey League the use of the ice surface on Saturday afternoons next winter. It is very likely that the majority of members in the league will vote to accept this offer. Cambridge Latin and Rindge, as well as Arlington are certain to favor it, as they have no rinks, while Belmont is not always certain of ice.

Schaaf Seeks Battle With Primo Carnera

ERNIE SCHAAF, who clashes with K. O. Christner, Akron giant, at Mechanics Building tomorrow night under the direction of the Argonne A. A., believes that a victory in this bout will not only install him among the topnotchers of the heavyweight division, but will also put him in line for a meeting with Primo Carnera in New York early next month.

Although negotiations already have been opened with Christner to fight Carnera in New York, a defeat for the Akron tire peddler is almost certain to result in the selection of Schaaf instead.

Schaaf is planning to rush Christner from the start tomorrow night in an effort to get over one of his terrific right hand wallops. [illegible] Schaaf [illegible] of the opinion that [illegible] lands his right [illegible] spot.

Schaaf always has been criticized for resorting to boxing in the ring instead of tearing in with knockout punches. Schaaf now feels as though he has made a mistake in his plan of battle and for this reason will try for nothing but to land a K. O. punch in this bout.

Christner, who defeated Schaaf in their previous meeting in this city, is of the opinion that $10,000 depends upon the result of this match with Schaaf. If he accepts the proposed bout with Carnera in New York, he points out that it will draw a gate of $150,000, of which he will receive $40,000. For this reason he wants to clinch this big shot by a decisive victory over the Hub favorite.

The entire card will consist of 50 rounds of boxing at popular prices from $1 to $3.

In the 8-round semifinal, Panino Villa of New Bedford will clash with Charlie Parker of the South End. It will be the third meeting between these rivals, each having won a bout. Parker replaces Harry Devine on the card as Devine sustained a broken nose in training.

Jimmy Rogers, who has won every bout in this city, [illegible] K. O. [illegible] will face a [illegible] in a six-round [illegible] he opposes Ed Hultgren, Swedish middleweight.

In another six-rounder Pete Herman of Roxbury and Bud Dempsey of the North End will meet in a rubber battle. In addition there will be five four-rounders on the card.

Bush May Play Bill Cissell at Second

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 20 (AP)—Bill Cissell, the Chicago White Sox' $123,000 shortstop, may be [illegible] to second base this season, Manager Donie Bush has indicated.

Cissell has been worked at second base every day since the Sox arrived, and Bush has spent considerable time with him.

Court Games Wanted

The Boys' Club basketball team of Waterbury, Conn., would like to arrange a home and home series with any amateur club in Boston averaging from 16 to 20 years of age.

COLLEGE SIXES IN ARENA TILTS

Two sets of well-matched college teams will come together at the Arena tomorrow night in another double-header.

Williams College, making its first Boston appearance in four seasons, will tackle Boston University and Bowdoin will meet Northeastern.

None of the four has any legitimate claim to the championship but each has an outstanding player or two and each apparently has an even chance of victory.

Williams has been beaten only twice this season and has played a tie with West Point. Bowdoin started slowly due to bad outdoor [illegible] and was beaten by B. U. in the Arena early in the season. Ben Houser has brought the team along some distance since then and it looms as a dangerous rival for Northeastern.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

American Experts to Inform Fans of Braves-Red Sox Activities

Boston's Braves and Red Sox start South for spring training this week-end; the Tribe on Saturday and the Fenway flock on Sunday.

The Boston Evening American will have baseball experts with both teams to keep its readers supplied with the latest and best news.

Nick Flatley, noted sports editor of the Boston Evening American, will join the Braves at St. Petersburg immediately after the Sharkey-Scott fight at Miami.

Flatley is a nationally-known sports authority and a real student of baseball. No fan worthy of the name can afford to miss his daily accounts of the happenings of St. Pete.

Joe Cashman will depart with the advance guard of the Sox for Pensacola on Sunday. He knows baseball, too, and, what is almost as important, knows the players intimately. Don't miss his daily impressions.

No better training camp stories will come out of the Southland than will be sent by the Boston Evening American observers. You will want to read every one, so you had better order your copy of the Boston Evening American at once, as the demand is sure to be great.

Bruin Fans to Follow Local Six to New York

By BILL GRIMES

HUNDREDS of fans are planning to make the trip to New York with the Bruins this week end. The Bruins office is arranging for tickets for Boston parties and judging from the demand, the Rossmen will not want for support when they tackle Lester Patrick's Rangers in the Garden on Sunday night.

The Bruins have been taking things easy since the Maroon game. They are still feeling the effects of the hard road trip to Buffalo, Toronto and Detroit and the Montreal affair but they will all be [illegible] at the peak [illegible] form for the Rangers.

Bill Grimes

The entire Bruin squad attended the mid-week performance of The Little Show as guests of the management. It was the first relaxation the boys had enjoyed in more than a week, and they enjoyed the production immensely.

Although Harvard is famous for the care it takes of its athletes, George Owen never received better and more consistent treatment than that rendered by Win Green, the Bruins' trainer. Owen was injured in Fort Erie, and for three days, Win Green was in almost constant attendence, working night and day to bring the great Crimson star of a few years ago back in shape.

The announcement that Guy McNeill was to receive a cut of the play-off series money does not sound like C. F. Adams. The owner of the Bruins is too clear a thinker to start any dissension in the ranks of the Bruins by agreeing to any such terms.

McNeill has had nothing to do with the Bruins reaching the play-offs and if he is to receive a bonus, which is very likely, it will come from the club and not the play-off series money.

Speed Nadeau, the latest Tiger recruit, is about the size of Cooney Weiland. He worked out with the Boston team in Providence last night for the first time but he was not used in the game.

Manager Sprague Cleghorn of the Rhode Island Reds will leave tonight for a short scouting trip through Eastern Canada. The Reds are going to lose three of their stars: Art Chapman, Johnny Gagnon and Bill McVicar. Manager Cleghorn is anxious to replace these players by the best available talent.

In compiling the figures showing the net profit, Eddie Powers has turned over to the Tigers on players bought and sold, the $1500 received for Whitey Field and the $900 for Freddie Litzen were overlooked. Instead of an even $20,000 net profit, Powers has brought $22,400 to the owners of the Tigers.

During the summer, a deal may be put through which will shift the ownership of the Tigers to the Bruins.

Referee George Mallinson is far too lenient with the Maroons as regards allowing players to protest his decisions. This is especially true in the case of Nels Stewart, who told Mallinson plenty in the Bruin game and was allowed to get away without a fine.

If the Maroons and Bruins meet in the Stanley Cup series, which right now appears to be most likely, there will be a mad scramble for tickets both here and in Montreal. The fans who wait for the last day to get their tickets will again be disappointed.

Although "Yip" Foster has been with the Tigers less than a week, he is very popular with his new teammates. "Yip" is a good mixer and fits well in the happy Powers family. By the way, Foster is one of the greatest football players ever developed in Canada and ranked by many experts as the peer of Lionel Conacher.

Paris, Feb. 20—Kid Francis, French bantamweight champion outpointed Petit Biquet, champion of Belgium, in a 10-round bout at Wagram Auditorium.

JONES HITS 70 IN PRACTICE

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 20 (AP)—Nearly a hundred of the country's pro and amateur golf exponents began play today over the Country Club course in the first round of the 72-hole $3000 open tournament.

The nation's ranking cash performers and southern amateurs, the latter led by Bobby Jones, national open king, yesterday took a jaunt around the difficult par 74 course in an effort to solve its peculiarities and to test the greens and fairways.

The Atlanta lawyer golfer turned in a 70 four under [illegible] figures, on his morning round, and then came back in the afternoon 18 holes to post a 68, six under the standard mark and only two more than the course record.

His playing partners of the morning round, Ed Dudley and Horton Smith, had 68's. In the afternoon Smith required 69.

However, Bobby and Fred Howden, Savannah amateur, were paired against Smith and Mike Howden, another Savannah simon pure, and scored a 2 and 1 victory.

Al Espinosa, who had a 72, Tony Manero, "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, Roland Hancock, Bobby Cruickshank, Joe Turnesa, Harry Cooper and Mike Turnesa were other niblick swingers who tested their clubs over the 6206-yard course yesterday.

Another 18-hole round is slated for tomorrow. The low 64 players and club champions who are not required to qualify will be participants in the championship 36-hole for the title Saturday.

French Mat Champ in Crucial Bout at Arena Tonight

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

DE GLANE AND SHERRY IN FEATURE

ONE of the season's biggest wrestling shows will be staged at the Boston Arena tonight.

Although no titles will be involved in any of the bouts, there will be several titular contenders battling for the chance to meet Gus Sonnenberg.

Topping tonight's long card will be Henri DeGlane, champion of France, a chap who has won thousands of admirers here, and Jack Sherry, Ohio champion. Neither has met with a defeat this season, therefore both have plenty at stake. They will wrestle best two out of three falls to a finish.

Marin Plestina, the big chap dubbed the "Trust Buster," will take on Joe Malcewicz of Utica, N. Y., in the semifinal.

Another bout of more than ordinary interest will bring together Ivan Koloff, a dangerous customer, and Bob "Bibber" McCoy of Cambridge, the ex-Holy Cross boy.

Wladek Zbyszko, the younger of the two Polish wrestlers of that name, will be pitted against Earl Wamle, the Bohemian, who is doing a comeback. Count Zarynoff, Russian star, will face Harry Mammas of Springfield. Zarynoff is one of the most skillful matmen in the game.

In the opener, Leo Hyatt, known as the "Mat Adonis," and Bob Wilkie will mingle. The first bout will go on at 8.15.

MONTY WELLS IN CANADIAN MEET

Toronto, Feb. 20 (AP).—With the leading Canadian runners competing against stars from the United States, Toronto holds the center of interest of the indoor track world tonight with the second Canadian indoor championship meet at the Coliseum.

The 100-yard dash [illegible] drawn the best field. George Simpson of Ohio State will try for indoor honors against Leigh Miller of Halifax and Johnny Fitzpatrick of Toronto. Chet Bowman of Newark, N. J., also is entered.

Monty Wells of Boston and Harold Osborn of Chicago are the favorites in the hurdles and the high jump with prospects of new Canadian records. Vic Pickard of Hamilton, former University of Pittsburgh star, likewise is seeking a Canadian record in the pole vault with Elmer Reick and Rod Goers of Detroit furnishing the opposition.

Ruth Only Holdout on Yankee Roster

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The first official announcement of the roster of the New York Yankees lists only Babe Ruth as a holdout. Thirty-four others have been signed and will be taken south for spring training, Yankee officials said yesterday. Col. Jacob Ruppert will attempt to complete the list through a conference with Ruth at St. Petersburg, Fla., and expects to leave March 4 to reopen negotiations with the home run king.

Columbia Regains Basketball Lead

New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—Columbia's basketball team has reasserted its contention that Pennsylvania is not going to have a clear road to the Eastern Intercollegiate League championship. Columbia stopped Penn once to take the lead, then after going down in an upset at the hands of Yale, the Lions regained a tie for the top last night by trouncing Cornell, 41 to 34.

Stella Walsh to Run in N. Y. Casey Meet

New York, Feb. 20 (INS)—Stella Walsh, Cleveland girl sprint sensation, will return to New York this winter, according to an announcement today by a director of the New York chapter, K. of C.

Miss Walsh will run in a 220-yard international test against three Canadian and American furlong champions—Dallas Creamer, Toronto, Canadian titleholder; Maybelle Gilliland of the Millrose A. A., American outdoor champion, and Catherine Donovan, American indoor champion.

Bouts Last Night

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati—Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., outpointed Vincent Foegione, Philadelphia (10); Jimy Neal, Cincinnati, knocked out Tomy Heltman, Pittsburgh (2).

Oakland, Cal.—Dave Shade, New York, outpointed Young Johnny Burns, Oakland (10).

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20—George Getz, millionaire coal operator who promoted the second Dempsey-Tunney bout with Tex Rickard, was talking with Mr. Boston in the lobby of the Roney-Plaza. Getz is a member of the Illinois Athletic Commission and has been passing away a few days watching Sharkey, Campollo, Maloney and Scott train.

"How is the boxing game in Chicago," asked Mr. Boston.

"Not as firm as I would like to have it," asserted Getz. "When the present commission took office, the governor stated that if we decided boxing could not be conducted properly in the State of Illinois that he would not appoint another commission. Such a decision would mean the end of boxing in Illinois.

Jack Conway

"I have always liked boxing. That is why I agreed to help the late Tex Rickard promote the second Dempsey-Tunney bout. I believe every body will agree with me when I say that the second Dempsey-Tunney bout was one of the high spots in sport. It drew a gate of $2,600,000 which still is the world's record. Most important, there is not anything objectionable in connection with the handling of the crowd, while the famous long count in the seventh round gave everybody a thrill."

"IF Sharkey defeats Scott and then disposes of Schmeling, will Illinois recognize him as world's champion?"

"I feel quite sure it will. For a time some of the members of the Illinois Commission felt that no champion should be recognized until Tuffy Griffith was first disposed of. But I contended that Tuffy is still a year away from the ranks of the headliners.

Maybe by the summer of 1931 he will be the man to put against Sharkey if the latter can dispose of Scott and Schmeling."

"How much do you believe a Sharkey-Schmeling bout would draw in New York, next June, provided the American champion knocks out Scott?"

"Between a million and a million and a half."

"WHAT do you think of Primo Carnera?" queried Mr. Boston.

"I saw him box Rioux in Chicago," answered Getz.

"Of course, one could not get any line on the Italian giant in what he showed in that bout, as Rioux, according to his own admission, was too nervous to throw a single blow.

"Carnera is a giant. We will not allow him to box in Chicago again unless he meets somebody like George Godfrey or Vittorio Campollo. He is not yet ready for a finished fighter like Sharkey."

GETZ and Mr. Boston later joined William F. Carey and watched Sharkey breeze through a lively workout. Jack punched the light bag for a round, boxed two sessions with Pierre Charles and two more with Johnny Grosso. He looked to be approaching fighting edge.

Getz and Carey dropped into Sharkey's dressing room after the workout.

"I have often heard people say," declared Carey, "'why do boxers get such big compensation for such a short period of work?' Those people have not spent much time around gymnasiums. I never saw anybody work any harder than you did today, Jack."

"You should have been out on the road with me the other morning following the big rainstorm down here," said Sharkey. "It was dark and I found difficulty seeing where I was running. I kept splashing through puddles. But I managed to cover three miles and the work did me much good.

"Roadwork is very important for a heavyweight as it develops his wind."

CAREY informed Sharkey that interest in the fight is increasing each day and that there will be few vacant seats in the Garden's new stadium in Miami City on the night of February 27.

"I won't object to taking my share of the gate receipts," said Sharkey good naturedly. "I will then start looking forward to my Milk Fund bout with Schmeling."

TROY FUND BOXER

Johnny Indrisano, East Boston boy, uncrowned welter champion, will appear in a boxing show tomorrow night at Columbus Hall, Maverick sq., East Boston. Proceeds of the show will go to the fund for the benefit of the family of James Troy, Boston police officer, recently slain while attempting to arrest an alleged bandit.

In training White's famous left has worked impressively and he is confident of stopping Perlick, who is about 18 years his junior. The bout is for six rounds.

INDRISANO TO BOX AT TROY FUND SHOW

Troy Benefit Bouts

Kid Flip vs. Eddie Ford
Johnny Gallo vs. Louis Baldi.
Christie DeRosa vs. Georgie Walker
Frankie Baranco vs. Mike Modica
Joe Kid Adams vs. Frank Diaz
Joe Wiseman vs. Charlie Colman
Battling Skee vs. Freddie Russo
Walter Allen vs. Joe Moran

A fine program of bouts has been arranged for tomorrow night at Columbus Hall, Maverick sq., East Boston, for the fund for the family of James Troy, police officer who was killed in attempting to arrest an alleged burglar [illegible].

Johnny Indrisano, uncrowned welter king of the world, has promised Ernie Stevens, who is in charge of the show, that he will appear. The contender for the world's title will be seen in action, although his opponent has not yet been announced.

Indrisano's backers believe that he can whip any one his weight in the world. He has cleaned up Joe Dundee, former world champ, and a few days ago gave a boxing lesson to Sergt. Sammy Baker of New York.

Baker, who is recognized as the hardest hitting welter in the world, was out of his class with the East Boston hope.

Larry Arthurs will be the referee of all bouts. Jove Matty and his Blue Birds are giving their services for the dancing which will be en cabaret style between bouts.

Rep. Billy Barker will be master of ceremonies. He has engaged Frankie Yale, East Boston's song bird, and Ben Allen, song and dance artist. Other interesting and entertaining features are also planned.

B. C. MILE TEAM IS DISBANDED

Jack Ryder has disbanded his Boston College one-mile team and two of the best runners in Boston College, Bob Sullivan and Captain Bill Mulcahy, are now angling for positions on the two-mile team.

Sullivan and Mulcahy were [illegible] on the one-mile team which lost three successive matches to Holy Cross. They were always [illegible] for a fast, fighting [illegible] mile but the rest of the [illegible] weak and the opposition very strong, especially as Bernie McCafferty ran anchor for Holy Cross in the three meetings.

Sullivan and Mulcahy have both concentrated on the quarter mile this winter. But they're in perfect condition and could be developed into strong half-milers within a week. This is what Jack plans to do.

Even if Sullivan and Mulcahy can't come through in the longer distance they'll give the present quartet enough bother and worry to push them to faster times.

Jack Ryder still believes that his two-milers can win the I. C. A. A. A. A. title. Without being pushed they covered the distance in eight minutes six and two-fifth seconds at the Millrose games. They should be able to do eight minutes and this time will be good enough to be in the running for the college title.

Boston College's freshman medley team also looms as a strong contender for Intercollegiate honors. This team, from present indications, will consist of Leo McCauley, Donald Fleet, Bob Jordan and Ralph Ward.

Ward, an unknown, ran second in the N. E. A. A. U. two-mile run held in conjunction with the B. A. A. schoolboy meet last Saturday. He is one of the strongest freshman milers in the East according to Jack Ryder who sees prospects of a future long-distance star in this yearling.

Friedman-Griffith Bout Is Postponed

Al Friedman, Roslindale heavyweight, has asked the Boston Garden a week's additional time to prepare for his meeting with Tuffy Griffith which was to have been the feature at the Boston Garden next show, February 25.

The match, therefore, will be carried over to March 7.

The postponing of the heavyweight match sent MacLean scouting for a new feature for the final day of this month. While he is practically certain of the team he is after MacLean is not at liberty to make any definite announcement of his plans until he receives the signed contracts.

Capone Beats Chicago Bookies for $100,000

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP). The Herald and Examiner tomorrow will say that Ralph (Bottles) Capone, brother of Al Capone, staged a betting coup today when his [illegible] won the fourth race at New Orleans and paid $118.[illegible] to win.

The story, based on an interview with a bookie, will say that Chicago bookmakers were taken for about $100,000 and will add [illegible] the bookmaker believes that New York, Buffalo, Cleveland and Louisville odds layers also probably got caught in the [illegible].

The bookie said, according to the paper, that almost no money was bet on the horse at the track, forcing the odds up.

The usual procedure is to wire money placed on heavily-played horses to the track, to be placed in the mutuel machines, but this was not done, the story will say, because the bookmakers feared to take a chance on wrecking a gangster's betting scheme.

HOPELESSLY IN LOVE WITH BOSS AT $20 A WEEK

Asks If She Should Keep Badly Needed Job

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Beatrice Fairfax

POOR little A. L., holding a twenty dollar a week job in a downtown office, spending every cent of it on a budget pared down to the minimum and being utterly without a rainy day fund, writes to ask me whether she will give up her job.

Not because the job is distasteful, or because she has anything else in the world in view, but because she is frightened by the glamour of it, or rather of the glamour of the busy young man who happens to be her "boss" and with whom she has hardly exchanged a personal word.

The poor child has fallen in love, you see. She believes that it's a hopeless matter and she is probably right, although I am sure that she exaggerates the god-like qualities of the young man and underestimates her own attractiveness.

She is afraid of betraying herself and of having her secret spied upon. So she proposes separating herself from the [illegible] cause of her disturbance. Or, she asks, would her going be unfair to the boss and the office? Because so much [illegible] has been [illegible] line of work that perhaps makes her indispensable.

It is astonishing, in a hard-boiled era like this, to encounter such innocence as A. L.'s and I cannot imagine how she has failed to catch [illegible] of the things that people are thinking and saying nowadays.

Harmoniously they are a wee bit, say 1 per cent or so interested in each [illegible] not enough to be apparent, except in a very delicate [illegible] But enough [illegible] that [illegible] like certain other powerful elements, may be ruinous in large doses and beneficial in minute ones.

But we must face the fact that a great many girls and women, in utter innocence, allowed their business relationships with men to be colored by more than the safe 1 per cent of this dangerous emotional quality which, when it mounts to 10 per cent, begins to be troublesome. It is possible that A. L., who says she isn't pretty and who has, I am afraid, a low estimate of herself in general, has progressed so far in her one-sided idolatry that she won't be able to follow my advice.

What the child needs is to become, in the slang of the period, more "realistic." She needs her job, which is a good one. So she should keep it. She is handicapped by the heavy emotional cargo she is now carrying, and that she must get rid of. It is obvious that such a girl, in order to achieve such depth of feeling, spends too much time alone.

But there is another point that is important to consider. It may horrify you to hear it, but A. L.'s case, which seems to us and to her [illegible]

Dulcy and Forbes Rushed to the Window

The snort of an auto engine startled them. There went Perkins, the butler, and the pearls, no doubt, were with him. The part of Dulcy is taken by Marion Davies.

Dyeing Milady's Hair

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

Josephine Huddleston

EXPERTS in the field of beauty are doing such remarkably good work in perfecting the methods of hair dyeing these days that the subject no longer can be ignored.

During the next few weeks I'm going to print several short articles about hair dyeing, but each one [illegible] take up only one feature of [illegible] branch of beauty culture.

In a recent issue of a trade magazine I was pleased to note the completely honest opinions and suggestions that were contained in its pages. We all know many reliable hairdressers who have been scrupulously honest and scientific in their hair-dyeing work but the thing which surprised and pleased me so much was finding out that the standards of the average hairdressers are being raised by those reputable men and women who head the various organizations that cater to the individual beauty shops.

Subsequent investigation brought to my attention that one of the most important features of hair dyeing, important to the woman as well as to the beauty shops, is the vast difference between true henna and chemical henna.

Egyptian henna, which is made by pulverizing the leaves of the henna plant, is a perfectly harmless dye, rather improving the actual condition of the hair than harming it. Chemical hennas, however, are not made from herbs; some of them contain salts of copper, others salts of silver and lead or a large percentage of iron. And that is where the inexperienced woman gets into difficulties both with her health and with her beauty. For although the real henna made [illegible] good [illegible] chemical hennas are rather injurious.

Natural or Egyptian [illegible] the hair soft and [illegible] sheen that is possible only when the health of the hair has not been impaired. Chemical hennas act as a lacquer which not only gives the hair itself an unnatural shine but which seals over the pores in the hair to such an extent that its life and vitality are seriously harmed.

Each time the hair dyes reach a stage where they have been proven absolutely harmless, it is best to let a reliable hairdresser take over this part of your beauty routine. I know you are wondering how you can tell whether the one you are considering can be trusted to give you the very best service and so in my next article on Monday I am going to give you some suggestions that will enable you to test for your own satisfaction the merit of the person who is to dye your hair.

Good Macaroni Dishes

Martha Lee.

MACARONI, spaghetti and noodle dishes, balanced by leafy vegetables and fruits, make economical main dishes for the careful manager.

Today I have for you two favorites and offer them with the reminder that these dishes contain protein for body building and repair, fats and carbohydrates for heat [illegible] mineral salts for blood, bone and teeth, and vitamins for health and growth.

SPAGHETTI ROYAL

1 pkg. spaghetti.
7 slices lean bacon.
1 small onion, chopped fine.
¼ lb. snappy cheese.
2 cans tomato soup.

Parboil the spaghetti for 7 minutes in 4 qts. rapidly boiling water to which 1 tbsp. salt has been added. Drain. Panbroil the bacon. Place layer of spaghetti in the bottom of baking dish, dot with pieces of the minced cheese and bacon, add another layer of spaghetti and continue until used up. Mix the tomato soup and onion and pour over the top. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Macaroni may be substituted for the spaghetti.

FRANKFURTS WITH NOODLES

5 frankfurters.
4 tbsps. shortening.
1 medium onion, sliced.
2 tbsps. flour.
2 cups canned tomatoes.
1 stalk celery, chopped.
¼ tsp. pepper.
2 tbsps. minced parsley.

Boil the noodles for 9 to 12 minutes in 4 qts. rapidly boiling water to which 1 tbsp. salt has been added. Drain. Skin the frankfurters. Melt the shortening, add the onion and frankfurters and cook, stirring constantly until the latter are well browned. Remove browned onion and add to the shortening the flour made into a paste with 2 tbsps. of water, the tomatoes, celery, salt, pepper and mustard. Cook 15 minutes. Pour the sauce over the noodles arranged on a hot platter. In the center place the frankfurters garnished with the parsley. Elbow macaroni may be substituted for the noodles.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Child Sick If Underweight

Dr. Copeland

MANY [illegible] work [illegible] should be [illegible] long hours of study and home work [illegible] they are unfit to do any task with profit and pleasure.

How about your child? Has his school report shown him behind in his studies? does he seem tired and [illegible] is [illegible] he underweight?

This question of underweight centers about a good many contributing causes. Perhaps the first thing to consider is whether or not he has any physical defects. No body but a doctor can tell [illegible] The child should have a thorough physical examination.

A healthy child is usually a happy one. Such a child should be able to maintain his school stand[illegible] to make his [illegible] without [illegible] health this is an impossibility.

If your child is underweight he is [illegible] be sure [illegible] family taught the right habits of living, of eating, sleeping and recreation.

Any physical defects should be [illegible]

[illegible] should have an hour of rest in bed in a dark room [illegible]

[illegible] in fact he should be out [illegible] fresh air and sunshine [illegible] Nothing [illegible] so quick[illegible]

As he gains in weight and strength [illegible] exercise in play [illegible] his appetite should return [illegible] and as he [illegible] too will [illegible] mental powers increase.

After all, health comes first of all in importance. The underweight child must be considered as a sick child. He should not be found fault with, but firmly and kindly guided [illegible] right living habits. When his day has been reorganized, and he has had time to build up his bodily functions, it will be worth untold riches to have him again in good health. It will be a joy to know that his depleted condition has been turned into one of sound bodily vigor.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

F. R. S., Roslindale. Q.—Would it be advisable for a man of 70 to take aspirin for headache or a weak feeling? I have been advised to take it but not by a doctor.

A.—Do not attempt treatment of any [illegible] unless it has been specifically prescribed for you by a doctor. The practice of taking drugs or medicines indiscriminately is most unwise.

BEAR 'DRIVE' IS FOLLOWED BY A RALLY

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—Stocks fell into a decided slump during the early hours of trading today, as the selling wave which appeared late yesterday swept through the market, but the liquidation appeared to have been completed by early afternoon, and bulls rallied to the support of leading shares.

Early declines of 1 to 2 points were considerably reduced, and several shares were lifted above last night's closing levels.

Bears evidently took advantage of the jar to confidence provided by the sudden downturn late yesterday to launch a concerted attack and many traders long of stock hastened to take profits.

STATEMENT AWAITED

Several commission houses have been advocating the lightening of accounts in preparation for a technical reaction for about a week. Further declines in the grain markets also caused some nervousness.

The most conspicuous item of the day's corporation news was the annual report of National Lead, together with announcement of a $3 extra dividend on the stock.

While earnings for last year were nearly double those of the previous year, current sales were said to be about 45 per cent below a year ago, against 32 per cent in January. A few other concerns announced favorable earnings statements for 1929.

Monetary conditions were unchanged, with call loans still quoted at 4½ per cent and in ample supply at that level. Attention was focused upon the weekly federal reserve statements to appear after the close of the market.

Wall Street generally looked for a moderate increase in brokers' loans. There is also considerable talk of reduction in the rediscount rate to 3½ per cent, although such action is not expected for some time.

LOSSES ARE CANCELLED

American Telephone, U. S. Steel and American Can, which were in the van of the recent advance, were heavily sold during the forenoon, losing about 2 points each, but these losses were cancelled in the early afternoon rally.

Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak and International Silver dropped 5 points each, but soon rallied smartly. Brooklyn Union Gas gained more than 2 points.

Gillette advanced nearly as much, and International Telephone and American Tobacco B gained moderately.

Radio moved up about a point to a new high for 1930.

Otis Elevator lost more than 10 points, and shares which showed losses of 3 to 4 points included Chesapeake & Ohio, Auburn Auto, Columbia Gas, Standard Gas, Western Union, R. H. Macy and Air Reduction.

Oils and coppers sagged further, Standards of New Jersey and California and Kennecott reaching new lows for the year.

The rally in stock prices during the early afternoon trading today failed to hold when a concerted bear drive was made against a half dozen of the leading issues, including U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, New York Central and Union Pacific which were driven 2½ to 4½ points below the previous close.

Some of the less active shares had a more severe fall, notably Otis Elevator, off 10, Commonwealth Power, off 8, and Auburn Auto, off 7.

Radio, which had established a new high for the year at 46⅜, tumbled with the others and showed a loss of about a point in the final hour.

The closing tone was weak. Sales approximated 3,200,000 shares.

Manitoba's Fish Trade Is Growing

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Feb. 20—More than 90 per cent of the fish shipped out of Manitoba by the Canadian National Railways finds its way to the American market, according to a report just issued by the car service department of the road.

This traffic movement has shown a marked increase during the first six weeks of the present year over the like period of 1929. Up to February 14th of last year's fishing season, 595 cars of fish were shipped out of Manitoba, while this year, during the corresponding period, 769 cars of Manitoba fish have been moved. This is an increase of 174 cars or approximately 2262 tons.

The increase in shipments is attributed to the greater activity of fisheries around the Pas made possible by the recent establishment of railway communication with the Flin Flon and Cold Lake areas.

Tax Collectors Could Unfold Panic Tales

Executives to Use Flying Service to S. America; A Doctor's Bill

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—Income tax collectors could a few tales unfold about what the stock panic did to sundry gentlemen. Not a few appeared in person to explain to the collector that they had been absolutely cleaned out of cash. Some had hocked every security they owned and would have had to be sold out by bank or broker if compelled to produce income tax money. Others explained that they had some unpledged collateral, but that it would ruin them to part with it at panic prices.

B. C. Forbes

All that some could do was to delay payments and submit to the penalty described by law. In other cases, the collector, while explaining that he could not accept stock as collateral, suggested that they furnish a surety company bond, the Government to hold the bond until payment could be made. This was done in quite a number of cases.

Yesterday a unique flying service, sponsored by influential New York financial and business leaders, was inaugurated. The route, to be covered weekly, traverses some 8000 miles of water, coast, mountains and plains between the United States and South America.

William P. McCracken, Jr., who recently resigned as assistant secretary of commerce for Aeronautics, heads the company, the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires Line. The trip south will start from Miami and continue down the east coast to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires while the northern trip starts from Santiago, Chile, crosses the Andes to Buenos Aires, thence northwards along the coast.

The schedule allows seven days for the Miami-Buenos Aires trip, six days to Rio, and two days from Miami over the West Indies to South America. Various South American centers will be served from coast points.

The fastest steamers now take about 18 days from New York to Buenos Aires. Thus the time saved will be substantial. Parts of the route have been operated for months, with, it is stated, gratifying results. Many large United States corporations doing business with South America have given assurances that they will use the "NYRBA" Line extensively for executives' travel, while certain classes of merchandise will also be consigned.

This direct line to Rio and Buenos Aires had counted upon carrying United States mails. But the wholly unexpected announcement has come from Washington that it is proposed to award the mail contract to another air line which operates down the sparsely-populated West Coast of South America and which, after carrying the mails to Santiago, will have to fly them across the Andes in order to serve Buenos Aires and Rio. In other words, the mails will first have to be carried South, then East and then North. Wasington reports that a vigorous protest is to be submitted by the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires Line, on the basis that its service is the logical one to use since it provides a direct service to these two main South American cities.

E. G. Diefenbach, who, at thirty-six, has risen to command of the well-known financial firm of G. E. Barrett & Co., told me this incident to illustrate how keen interest was in stock speculation before the collapse:

A member of the New York Stock Exchange called upon a doctor to have his throat examined. The doctor instantly began to ply him with questions about the stock market in general, and then wanted information tips, really on the various stocks. So intense was his interest in stocks that the doctor didn't trouble even to examine the broker's throat, but simply told him there was nothing serious the matter.

In due course a bill came. The broker, who had been indignant at the lack of interest manifested by the doctor, immediately made out a detailed bill, charging so much for the information he had given on the market in general, and so much for each stock on which his expert opinion had been asked. He totaled the amounts, deducted the doctor's bill, and asked for payment of the balance!

No second bill ever came.

CURB MARKET MODERATELY DEPRESSED

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—Curb market shares were under steady but moderate pressure today. Trading tended to slacken on declines, and in general the list maintained a fairly firm undertone, but cautious efforts to resume operations for the advance were largely unavailing.

The utilities bore the brunt of the selling, but losses were mostly limited to a point or two. Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, American & Foreign Power warrants, and Middle West Utilities were among issues showing such declines.

Central States Electric's favorable earnings statement merely prompted profit-taking. A firm spot was United Light & Power A, which was bid up more than a point to a new high for the movement, but it quickly encountered realizing.

Investment trusts likewise sagged. National Investors, a recent strong feature, encountered particularly heavy profit-taking, and Lehman Corporation sagged moderately.

The Goldman Sachs issues were fairly steady, moving fractionally higher in the early trading. Pennroad encountered further liquidation, dropping below 15.

A few of the industrials moved forward in light trading, with chemicals showing notable strength. Both Newport Company and United Chemical reached new high ground for the movement. Johnson Motor and Sidney Blumenthal likewise rose to its best levels of the year. Technicolor and Marshall Field, two stocks admitted to trading this week, were inclined to sag.

Some of the oils reacted from the upturn late yesterday, Vacuum and Humble losing ground moderately. Gulf and Cities Service were fairly steady. Memphis was a feature of the natural gas stocks, rising a couple of points to a new peak in active trading.

Walworth Showing Very Favorable

Few 1929 reports of industrial concerns compare as favorably with 1928 and immediately preceding years as that of Walworth Co., of which Howard Coonley is president. Larger sales volume, lower costs, new products and greater diversification—all contributed to the showing of convertibles by the Rock Island ahead of the 1928 volume, while net profit after all charges, of $2,031,840, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $6.10 a share on 319,665 common shares, was 392 per cent greater than 1928 net of $113,155, or $1.09 a share on 300,000 common shares after preferred dividends.

Walworth's 1929 profits were more than 48½ per cent larger than the previous high record of $1,434,947, in 1923.

Western Union Co. Has Larger Income

Increased gross and operating incomes for the Western Union Telegraph Co. for the full five months of 1929 are shown in the figures just released.

Gross income for the 12 months amounted to $145,667,196, as compared with $136,449,513 for the preceding year, while operating income for the year amounted to $15,577,038 as against $15,569,084 for the 12 months of 1928.

Gross for December was $12,087,894, compared with $12,137,349 for the same month of 1928, while the operating income for the month totaled $1,305,420, as against $1,433,999 in the corresponding 1928 month.

American Surety Plans Expansion

Further expansion plans of the American Surety Company and the Camden Fire Insurance Association were made public with the announcement that a complete automobile coverage policy will be written by them.

The combination policy will be offered through the 15,000 agents of the American Surety and more than 3000 agents of the Camden Fire, located in all parts of the country.

INDUSTRIALS' USE OF GAS IS GROWING

New York, Feb. 20—According to the American Gas Journal, the industrial use of gas will soon exceed the domestic use. At the present time, the homes of the nation are consuming 338 billion cubic feet of manufactured gas and 321 billion cubic feet of natural gas—a total of almost 660 billion cubic feet a year.

In industrial uses, where gas is used for heating alone, the industries are using 147 billion cubic feet of manufactured gas and over 383 billion billion cubic feet of natural gas—a total of 530 billion cubic feet a year.

Last year the production of natural gas in the United States equaled 1,568,120,000,000 cubic feet, of which something slightly more than 700 billion cubic feet were used for domestic and industrial purposes, the remainder being consumed in the manufacture of gasoline and oils, lamp black and other by-products of natural gas.

Among the domestic uses of gas, both manufactured and natural, is refrigeration. It is estimated that at the present time there are 63,000 gas-fired refrigerators in use in the United States.

The manufactured gas industry has 11,841,000 customers and the natural gas industry 4,366,000 customers.

WHALEY MUM ON MERGER

Chairman C. P. Whaley of Vacuum Oil Co. admitted today he might shortly be prepared to have something to say regarding the proposed merger of Vacuum and Standard Oil of New York, which serves the New England territory. He looks for early improvement in gasoline consumption and is optimistic about the future of the industry.

Chairman Whaley said: "We are passing through a season of the year when consumption of gasoline is normally at its lowest, and reduction in consumption this year was further augmented by the severe winter that has prevailed generally throughout the country.

"Conditions must soon improve as we are approaching spring and summer months, during which consumption of gasoline normally is at its height and undoubtedly will be greater this year than during any year past."

Regarding Vacuum Oil Co. Mr. Whaley stated results for 1929 had been most satisfactory, in that they almost equalled 1928, which was the high record year. Annual statement for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, will be released as usual toward the end of March.

Eisler Electric Corp. has acquired Tungsten Electric Corp., producers of tungsten and molybdenum products for electrical equipment, automobile, aviation and other important industries.

DIVIDEND ON COMMON B. & M. STOCK IS NEAR

Boston & Maine Railroad directors meet for dividend action on the preferred stock Tuesday, Feb. 25, and it is probable also that they will consider common dividend resumption today believed near. No dividends have been paid on the common since 1913.

Declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1 per share is looked for, putting the stock on a $4 per annum basis first payment to be April 1. There is a possibility of a higher rate, but this is considered less likely.

Resumption of common dividends by Boston & Maine would mark another long forward step in the great rehabilitation of New England railroads which has occurred since 1923. The way has been paved for resumption of Boston & Maine common dividends by settlement early in 1929 of back dividends on the non-accruing first preferred stock, involving about $2,655,000, and by resumption Jan. 1, 1929, of dividends on the old 6 per cent preferred stock. These were notable milestones in Boston & Maine's great progress.

In 1929 Boston & Maine earned the equivalent of $6.48 per share on 395,051 shares of common stock, after preferred dividend and sinking fund payments, but this did not take into account $1,458,813 of back mail pay, equal to $3.67 per common share, which was credited to profit and loss account.

Had Boston & Maine taken this into current revenues, as practically all other roads did, the result would have been total earnings of $10.15 per share, and that is after sinking fund deduction. Furthermore, it is calculated that operating expenses in 1929 for abnormal items in connection with the road's improvement program amounted to at least $10 per share additional on the common.

Higher Net Profit in 1929 for U. G. I.

Preliminary net income of the United Gas Improvement Co. for the past year from dividends, interest and miscellaneous sources will approximate $32,953,549, less expenses, interest and taxes of $4,678,439, making a net income of $28,275,110, according to John E. Zimmerman, president.

These earnings do not include profit from the sale of securities and other non-recurring income, which amounted to $9,947,242.

In the preceding year the company showed a net profit of $27,579,161, after depreciation, taxes and minority interest.

Plan New Makeup for Combustion

Plans for reorganization of International Combustion Engineering Corp. are slowly taking shape and it is likely that the committee will have an announcement to make in the not distant future.

Accountants are still working on the audit and until this is completed the reorganization committee is naturally in no position to make final recommendations.

Friends of the company believe that it has substantial earning power and with proper financial support this can be amply demonstrated, permitting the company to take its real position of leadership in its new and growing lines of industry.

Bank of England's Reserve Increased

London, Feb. 20 (AP)—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 2,562,000; circulation decreased 2,422,000; bullion increased 139,000; other securities decreased 1,450,000; public deposits decreased 4,066,000; other deposits decreased 862,000; notes reserve increased 2,157,000; government securities decreased 6,130,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 61.47 per cent, compared with 56.43 last week. Rate of discount 4½ per cent.

Lexington awarded to Lexington Trust at 100.9509 $50,000 4½ per cent coupon notes dated March 1, 1930, and payable 1931 to 1940. Other bidders were: Estabrook & Co., 100.83, and Faxon, Gade & Co., 100.711.

BOND MARKET HAS A QUIET SESSION

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—There was little breadth or depth to the bond market today, and trading languished in the early hours. By far the most active issue was the American Telephone convertible 4½s which declined, with the shares on fairly brisk selling.

Most of the prime rails were lethargic, moving within a range of about a quarter point. Rock Island refunding 4s, Southern Railway general 6½s, and the New York Central, Pennsylvania and Wabash issues were firm. The market has been expecting announcement of a $25,000,000 issue.

A two-point rise by Shell Pipe

A two-point rise by Shell Pipe Line 5s, a similar gain by New Orleans, Texas & Mexico A ½s, and a five-point advance in Walworth 6½s with warrants were miscellaneous features in the dull domestic list.

Foreign bonds exhibited considerable steadiness. Finland 5½s gained 2½ points to a new high for the year. French, German and Belgian bonds were inactive.

Aside from the American Telephone debentures, the share privilege division was dormant. International Telephone 4½s traded at virtually no price change, but Lautaro Nitrate 6s picked up a point.

Little inquiry appeared for the United States governments, and quotations remained virtually at the Wednesday close.

Two small municipal loans were offered. One was a City of Los Angeles $1,550,000 issue of 4½s priced to yield 4.25 to 4.35 per cent. The other was a $1,750,000 issue of Memphis, Tennessee 4½s, yielding 4.30 for all maturities.

It was announced that the $16,000,000 issue of 6 per cent convertible 20-year debentures of the Pacific Northwest Public Service Co., formed to consolidate the Seattle and Portland properties of Central Public Service Corp., had been oversubscribed.

Cotton Prices in Sagging Movement

New York, Feb. 20 (INS)—Cotton prices continued to sag this morning after their perpendicular drop during the last hour of trading yesterday. At first call today prices were from 4 to 5 points lower and later continued to ease. March opened 6 points lower at 15.23 and then dropped off 4 more to sell at 15.19. May contracts were under heavier pressure for they sold off 11 points to 15.45 after having opened comparatively strong at 15.52.

Around noon, however, the cotton market steadied, and later prices were: March, 15.28; May, 15.51; July, 15.71; October, 15.92; December, 16.11 and January, 16.17.

Merchants Makes Payment of 10 P. C.

Merchants Manufacturing Company of Fall River declared a special liquidation dividend of 10 per cent, involving a cash distribution of $150,000, and bringing total to 35 per cent paid in dividends since controlling ownership was acquired by Newman syndicate. Considerable equipment in the main mill has been sold since change in ownership, while some has been moved to Crescent Mill unit, in which new machinery has also been added.

Aroostook Decision Is Against Paying Higher Dividend

New York, Feb. 20—Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, which in 1929 achieved the best earnings in its history, has just decided against increasing the dividends paid on the common stock. Chairman John Henry Hammond of the executive committee declared the matter had been fully discussed and the committeemen had decided not to recommend paying a higher rate. Dividends were declared of 88 cents on the common and $1.75 on the preferred, both payable April 1 to stock of record March 1.

FINANCING FOR UNITED FRUIT IS DENIED

Rumors accompanying the decline in United Fruit shares below 90 to the effect that the company contemplated financing through a large bond issue to build additional ships are wholly without foundation.

Cash holdings of the company at the year-end were some $21,000,000 and still remain at that level despite the fact that capital expenditures have been extensive.

First quarter of the year, which is normally the poorest, is thus far up to last year and banana market condition are at the moment favorable. In a business where weather conditions so greatly influence consumption it is idle to attempt to forecast profits for a period that is only half completed.

United Fruit earned $6.78 a share on its 2,625,000-share capitalization in 1929 and $8.21 a share in 1928 and $7.84 a share in 1927 on a 2,500,000-share capital. The three-year average per share is thus $7.62 or nearly twice the regular $4 cash disbursement.

Decline in the stock appears to be the result of bearish operations plus some disappointment over the failure of directors at the meeting a fortnight ago to order an "extra." There are no fundamental adverse developments in the company.

GIVES REASONS FOR OIL CUTS

Taking cognizance of objections raised by producers and others to recent cuts in crude oil prices made by its affiliated companies, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, in current issue of The Lamp, company publication, traces the developments which led to these reductions in mid-continent and Texas fields. It states that these revisions were due to economies of the situation, emphasizing the surplus accumulation of oils in storage which it declares were further augmented in January this year.

"The process of accumulation continues," company says, adding: "Such a situation plainly forecasts a repetition of the experience of previous years when excessive runs to stills in winter months reacted adversely upon gasoline market during season of large consumption."

With regard to statements made in some quarters that the effect of the price revisions would be withdrawal of support from conservation movement, company says:

"Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey believes that conservation and the prosperity of the industry cannot be realized while additions are being made to the already burdensome stocks, and that immediate problem before the industry is to effect material decrease in present surplus stock of gasoline. This company's operations are in balance, and its stocks of gasoline as well as crude are less than they were at this time a year ago."

Stating that it has adhered to its announced policy of limiting its production and manufacturing activities so far as possible to current market requirements, Standard Oil of New Jersey shows in following tabulation to what extent inventories of its affiliated companies in the United States have decreased (in barrels):

	Feb.7,30	Feb.7,29	Dec.
Naphtha fin.&unf.	8,290,264	8,323,375	31,111
Other products	17,970,879	18,302,460	331,581

T'l crude & prod.	71,613,891	72,815,186	1,171,295

In past year Standard Oil of New Jersey affiliated companies imported 27,971,000 barrels of crude and products from South America and Mexico, a decrease of 2,371,000 barrels from 1928.

Delaware & Hudson

Net income in 1929 of Delaware & Hudson Railroad Co. equals $15.14 a share on 515,735 shares, against $12.33 a share in 1928.

By THE RADIO EDITOR

ASSURANCE that the ruling powers at WNAC and WLEX are drawing day by day nearer to a complete amalgamation of interests is strengthened by the announcement that WLEX will broadcast tonight's Symphony Hall Wet-Dry, Boston College-Harvard debate, as a result of arrangements made by WNAC. This feature would have been carried by WNAC station officials state, except for the impossibility of arranging last minute changes in their scheduled program. It has been known for months that the owners of WNAC have been desirous of purchasing or leasing WLEX and transferring it to Worcester to serve as an additional Columbia outlet in that region, and thus to increase WNAC's "New England chain." The Federal Radio Commission has been reluctant to grant this permission, but a recent order has come through, changing the assigned wavelengths of WLEX and WLEY to slightly better frequencies. Perhaps the other will follow.

THE LEXINGTON station owners have little need for their WLEX transmitter and license since their purchase some months ago of WBET and its transfer to their town and to the new call letters, WLEY. In the meantime there is an abundance of New York Columbia program material which would be available for a station such as WLEX if it should come under WNAC's control. The Boston station finds itself obliged to pass up a great deal of fine Columbia entertainment, especially in the afternoon and early evening hours, because of the local booking of more profitable local commercial programs. These programs could be used to advantage by a supplementary station, and a considerable amount of good will could be built up.

TONIGHT'S debate, which is held under the auspices of the Fulton Debating Society of Boston College has for its subject the desirability of repealing the Baby Volstead act in Massachusetts. Boston College takes the affirmative, and a team representing Harvard takes the negative. Debaters for B. C. are John J. Wright, Edward F. Connelly and Edward A. Hogan. For Harvard, George W. Harrington, Armistead D. Roud and Paul C. Reardon. The debate starts at 8 o'clock and there will be typical college music.

REMARKABLE engineering effects are being accomplished by the young enthusiasts who are operating the voice transmitter at the Shortwave and Television Laboratory. The transmitter works on a wave of 137 meters and has only five watts of power, but as I listen to it, it has all the quality and volume of many a nearby 500 watter. Sadly enough, the "Program" is largely drivel. The boys use the transmitter merely to describe the person or object being televised on their other transmitter, WIXAX, and up to date, the television activities have been rather flat. In its present restricted state, television consists merely in bringing some individual before the photo-cells so that friends and strangers near and far may guess what he looks like. If atmospheric conditions are good, his features are fairly distinguishable.

Naturally, with so little action taking place, and under the universal studio impulse of "keeping something always going" when the mike is open, the boys are hard put to it to be entertaining. The result is much repetition, much pointless patter, and much discussion of technological thrills which are not very obvious to the lay listener. It must be borne in mind, however, that these boys are engineers and not entertainers. Their big job is that of bringing an infant science out of swaddling clothes, and they seem to be doing it. They have enthusiasm, and they have the untiring energy which finds solutions to things which big business is often content to let remain insoluble. In the end, big business will probably gobble it all up, as it has all the fiery accomplishments of the young radio pioneers from the beginning, but in the meantime, youth has the satisfaction of doing something intensely.

BEVERLY ADDS MORE LAND TO AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

When mayors start flying, it is a good sign for the aviation industry and we don't mean maybe, either.

This "flying mayor" stuff is prompted by Roy Patch, who holds sway down in the city of Beverly, and who is the best mayor we have ever seen for whole-hearted support of aviation.

About a year and a half ago, the Beverly Aero Club was formed, and laid dormant until last spring. Then they came to life with a bang, and started right out to find themselves an airport, buy themselves a ship, and go flying.

The Aero Club boys found themselves a clear plot of land on the Beverly-Danvers line and started operations. Then along came Wetmore-Savage Aircraft Corp. with a couple of ships, and a desire to operate from an airport other than Boston. This was quickly arranged, and the "cow-pasture," as the airport was then termed, saw several ships flying from it all summer without anyone suffering so much as a twisted tonsil.

After convincing the doubting Thomases that the racket was on the level and that the boys of both outfits were on the level, the city itself started to perk up and be convinced it had an airport in the making.

Then came Mayor Patch, with his whole organization behind it, and the airport was immediately made suitable for even a tri-motor to land and get away clean.

This improvement was noted and appreciated by the boys of both outfits, and the fliers of New England at large, and before long, when someone said they were going to fly into Beverly Airport, there wasn't a single snicker heard. For the port was beginning to take the form of a flying field of the first water.

When the weather became too tough, the Beverly Aero Club boys decided they had enough, and the Wetmore-Savage bunch also thought along the same channels, so the ships were put away and things were washed up for the winter months.

During this time, Mayor Patch had had his first ride in an airplane, and several others besides, and became absolutely sure of the fact that this town on the North Shore needed a flying field second to none, which would take care of the entire North Shore section, both summer and winter traffic.

MORE LAND ADDED

Roy Patch then started out to find if there was more land that could be acquired, and if so, how much dough it would cost to put it in shape for flying activities. He found out, and there is about $20,000 ready for work this spring to enlarge the present runways into a field over half a mile square.

At present, the runways measure 1500 feet north and south and over 1300 feet east and west. With clear approaches the airport can be used by any ship flying in this part of the country. But when this flying mayor gets through, the runways will measure 3000 feet north and south and 2500 east and west. This east-west stretch will be the full length of the north-south run, and what the diagonals are you can figure out for yourself. In other words, it means that the airport, with its natural sod, will be the largest within a radius of 30 miles of Boston.

Then, to make things more interesting, North Shore Airways was formed, with one of the officials of the old Wetmore-Savage group as president, and we mean Bob Wetmore. Added to that, we have none other than the former box-fighter manager, and present laundry owner, Bob Bernson, as treasurer and general manager. All of which means that this North Shore Airways outfit is assured of the best breaks possible from the start.

To make things more interesting, this new outfit has New England's first woman executive on its payroll. She is none other than the flying-student-wife of Bernson, Mrs. Dolly Bernson. And by flying we don't mean walking around with a helmet and goggles on, and doing nothing about it.

READY TO SOLO

She has had about five hours dual instruction and is ready to go when the field is opened in March. Lyle "Slim" Halstead, chief pilot of the company, states that Mrs. Bernson will be soloed in an Arrow sportplane before the first of April arrives, and after that, watch out.

So, with the entire city government behind the port, and with two such live wire organizations flying from it, one composed of business men of the village, of which E. L. MacNeil, the automobile salesman, is one of the officials, and the other composed of boys who know their airplanes, what more than a lot of business could be expected from the port?

Particularly when someone of world-wide fame is slated to pay the place a visit this spring? Who is it? We'll let you know in a few days.

MORE GOOD TIPS

Some months ago we wrote about the necessity of a cinder path from the end of Maverick and Jefferies sts., to the main Boston Airport road, for the use of those who ride in trolley cars. This cinder path was immediately installed, but was placed so far down from the end of Jefferies st. that its use is rather nullified.

How about a couple more loads of cinders from the present excellent path to the junction of these two streets, thus making everything lovely for us guys? And a few board walks around the fronts of the hangars wouldn't be out of place at all.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Airport Boosters Shake

Bob Bernson Mayor Roy Patch

The Beverly Airport is to be the largest and best within 30 miles of Boston when Roy Patch, Beverly's flying mayor, completes the municipal development program. In anticipation of a great season, the flying mayor and Bob Bernson of North Shore Airways shake on it. Bernson is treasurer and general manager of North Shore and his wife, an executive in the concern, will be soloed in early spring (Staff photo.)

German Club Fund Is Nearing Goal

With a substantial check donated by Kurt von Tippelskirch, German consul, and several hundred dollars which were realized from last week's play given by the members of the German Club of Boston University's college of practical arts and letters, the scholarship fund is nearing completion, according to the president of the group, Gertrude Mann of Jamaica Plain.

The goal of $1000 was set several years ago, and Mrs. Josephine Pickering Haskell, faculty sponsor of the college club, said that the desired sum is almost accumulated.

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Making Them Soft

SHOULD the City Pay for the Uniforms of Schoolboy Athletes?

THE TIME approaches when graduating classes of fifty or more New England high schools will be leaving home for a visit to Washington.

In many communities this is the school event of the year. There are always two or three days at the capital, where boys and girls are shown about by their congressman. Sometimes they get to see the President.

And who pays for these trips?

The touring students who, usually with the assistance of other pupils, stage a minstrel show or a comic opera or run a "Washington" dance or two.

The Washington tours and the way in which they are financed come to mind in connection with the request of school officials for a law giving to the City of Cambridge the right to appropriate money with which to buy "athletic clothing" for the teams of THREE Cambridge high schools.

Gate receipts will NOT buy uniforms, the Committee on Municipal Affairs was told, because of conditions peculiar to Cambridge, where the crowd spends its money to see Harvard, Tufts, Boston College and Boston University. Attendance is small even when Rindge and Latin have winning teams.

From $2500 to $3000, the committee was told, is all that will be needed.

Does that mean for one year or a longer period?

What will the city say to grammar-school boys, when they come along?

And what about the girls and their basketball teams?

If in Cambridge, why not in the other cities?

This newspaper believes in the schools, and in the boys and girls, and would give them everything within reason, but somehow we feel that the "old" New England way is best and that it will put life and pep and vim into these Cambridge lads if the pupils of the three schools are left to work out the "uniform" problem in their own way.

The immediate question, however, is one for the people of Cambridge. The pending bill provides that at the coming election the question shall be submitted to THEM.

Against an Income Tax

But a Legislature Already Recorded in Favor May Force It Upon the People of New Hampshire Against Their Will

ONE of three candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor of New Hampshire has joined the great and growing army of citizens opposed to the establishment of a State income tax.

As ONE of the reasons for his opposition, Dr. Hugh K. Moore of Berlin says the passage of such a law will "increase the already large army of parasites living on the public money."

In the main, however, State-wide opposition is explained by the fact that the tax program of the "special" session of the Legislature which opened yesterday—the fourth "special" session in 150 years—aims at the relief of one class of citizens by placing its tax-burden upon the shoulders of another class.

The plan is to EXEMPT STANDING TIMBER from taxation and make up for this exemption by taxing the EARNED incomes of professional and salaried men and merchants. This is not the entire program. It IS its nub.

As the next regular session of the State Legislature will begin next January, and the proposed tax laws are not to become effective until the following March, surprise has been expressed that Governor Tobey should have felt called upon to summon a SPECIAL session of the lawmakers of 1929.

Which only goes to show that the New Hampshire public, like the public of other States, has a short memory.

The lumbermen and their friends preferred THIS Legislature, in SPECIAL session, because its House of Representatives sent an income tax bill to the Senate in April of last year by a vote of 195 to 154.

Since that time, however, the lawmakers have been hearing from the people, who in 1930 are no more desirous of what they look upon as a "nuisance tax" than they have been at any other time in 30 years.

If the men and women of the special session have respect for public opinion in the Granite State they will ask the Recess Tax Commission to "try again."

Antarctic Discoveries

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

IT IS often asked, by the man in the street, with reference to the discovery, or rather attainment, of either North or South Pole: "Well, what of it? After all, those polar regions are bleak, [illegible]-locked, valueless expanses, of no possible value to the world."

ALREADY, repeatedly and most effectively, Stefansson and many other explorers have answered this question. A possible world food-supply, as found in the reindeer, has often been urged as a sufficient excuse for studying extreme regions of the far North. The claims of science are urged, the correct mapping of the surface, the determination of the shore line, the depth of the water areas, the discovery of possible sources of wealth.

Man, especially scientific man, cannot rest content until he has acquired more or less exact knowledge of the surface of the globe, and of its interior.

THERE is something irresistibly fascinating about the Antarctic, which is virtually an unknown land.

When Captain James Cook, more than a century and a half ago, on his return to England after a long voyage into Antarctic seas reported having seen huge herds of fur-bearing seals, he set in motion a trade that was eventually to lead to the discovery of the polar continent called Antarctica. The vast area is estimated at five million square miles.

Ross discovered the active volcano, Mount Erebus; but his greatest discovery was the Great Ice Barrier, which bears his name. This apparently solid mass of ice of gigantic size, runs in an easterly direction from Ross Island, on which stands Mount Erebus.

The mighty barrier of ice which bears Ross's name is estimated to embrace the huge area of 160,000 square miles.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE explosion of a Brooklyn still is another reason why those things should be placed under government supervision.

It blew the windows out of a schoolhouse and gave the children their first lesson in practical chemistry.

At first the neighbors thought the still was in the school. Later they realized that such things could only occur in colleges and institutions of higher education.

The fermented explosion broke thousands of window panes. Think of having that stuff in a bottle on your hip.

The hootchbooters had set up a 250-gallon aquarium in a frame dwelling opposite the schoolhouse. Then they tapped a city gas main to get their motive power.

The affinity of illuminating gas for equally illuminating alcohol was too much for the coils and the retorts of the experimenting laboratory. The result was the same as if a raisin had been dropped into Mount Vesuvius.

People who fool around with paints, oils and varnishes in habit forming quantities would do well if they put hinges on their roofs. The lid of the house could be swung back after each explosion.

We understand that the brewsters of the foothills of the West are all taking home courses in staggering chemistry.

The most dangerous thing that any man can do is to tweeze the ingrown hairs out of a lion's mane or stir liquid fire with a celluloid spoon.

Nitro-glycerine and TNT are maple syrup for your morning waffles when compared with the expanding properties of backyard hootch.

When a man lifts a glass of that stuff to his face he is not only liable to have his future bobbed, his tonsils scorched and his tonneau simonized, but he is also liable to have his eardrums shattered.

It's more dangerous than playing leapfrog on the edge of the Grand Canyon, smoking in a government arsenal or breaking the ice to take your daily cold plunge.

Pour a pint of it into the Atlantic ocean and all the walruses would shed their tusks, all the sardines would boil in their own oil, and all the sharks would go to a sanitarium with shell-shock.

It's deadly stuff to toy with. If you would live to an unripe old age, we advise you to toss away your inflammable recipes and stick to good old pump juice and the elixir of hydrants.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE reader will be familiar with a number of examples. The plumed fruits dandelions and thistles and the winged fruits of sycamore and pine sail in the wind for considerable distances.

H. G. Wells

The dry poppy head rocks in the wind and as it sways it scatters little puffs of seed, like a sower scattering handfuls of grain. It is, indeed, a better and more even distribution of fine grains than an ordinary salt shaker or pepper-pot, and a household shaker deliberately designed from the model provided by the poppy has recently been patented.

The fruits of violet and wood sorrel and the pods of gorse and the sweet pea burst with surprising violence and eject their tiny offsprings into the world. The seeds and fruits of water lilies have spongy coverings filled with air, by means of which they float for a time on the surface of the pond, later to become waterlogged and sink.

The fruits of goose grass and agrimony and burdock bristle with tiny hooks that catch in the fur, feathers or plus fours of passing creatures and so are carried for great distances before they are dropped brushed off or noticed, pulled off and tossed aside.

And there are many other ingenious devices to reward the observant naturalist.

Finally, there are the fleshy and succulent fruits—blackberries, dewberries, elderberries, currants, apples, cherries, plums, oranges, bananas, grapes, peaches, figs.

Here, again we find plants overcoming their own immobility by bribing animals to act as their postmen. The flesh of an apple, a strawberry, or an orange is not a store of food for the growing embryo, as the flesh of the bean is; it is a free gift deliberately set out for birds or mammals to consume.

In return, the consumers unconsciously distribute the plant. They often carry the fruit a little way before attacking it; if the seed is hard and large, like the stone of a cherry, it is dropped uneaten to the ground, and has thus achieved distribution.

If it is small and inconspicuous, like the seeds of a blackberry, it is swallowed with the rest of the fruit, and being indigestible, emerges unchanged from the other end of the alimentary canal; in the latter case it is not only distributed but manured.

The conspicuous appearance of most fleshy fruits is again an advertisement, drawing attention to the gift. The advertisements of fruit are mostly directed at vertebrates, those of flowers mostly at insects.

We may close by referring to the seeds of gorse, which employ humbler carriers; they have a small, fleshy appendange that is appetizing to ants, and in addition to being exploded out of their pods they are therefore dragged about by the ants, often for some distance.

Sec. 4. The Flowering Plants.

IT is by no means true that all plants reproduce themselves by means of flowers and distribute themselves by means of the resulting seeds.

These matters are characteristic peculiarities of one division of the vegetable kingdom. It is true that division includes by far the greater number of the plants that now cover the earth with meadows and jungles and forests, and nearly all that are grown for beauty, or for food, or for timber; nevertheless, there are other plants with other methods, and with these we shall have to acquaint ourselves.

But before we do we may note briefly that the division with which we have hitherto concerned ourselves, which may be called either the flowering plants (Phanerogams) or seed-bearing plants (spermatophytes), is divided into two classes.

The first class includes all the coniferous trees and shrubs—fir, pine, larch, cedar, cypress, juniper, yew and the rest—and also the peculiar tropical cycads and one or two other curiosities of which we shall learn more hereafter.

The conifers bear their pollen or egg-cells on little catkins, and the female catkin grows into a cone, each scale of which bears two seeds, but we may note two well-known exceptions to this rule; in yew and juniper, which are classified as conifers for other and weighty reasons, there are no cones; the fruits are fleshy berries, distributed by birds like other berries.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A LADY wants her freedom from the husky, handsome young football star, with whom she eloped in a thoughtless moment.

He has "a much younger mind" than SHE has, and she admits it! Which is a very astonishing admission, even from a modern woman.

I wonder if any man ever confessed that the dimpled cutie or the chorus girl or flapper half his age, whom he married in a glamorous moment of mental aberration, had a much younger mind than HE had. I doubt it!

"A man is as young as he feels"—or as he THINKS he feels; and as long as he can go through the motions of his daily dozen and train a few strands of hair across his temples, he will never admit that he is not "a boy at heart." Or that his mind is not as limber as his knee-kicks.

He doesn't mind frankly displaying a bald head or a double chin or a convex waistline—just so that he can keep up the illusion that his MIND is adolescent, and that he is mentally kicking up his heels like a colt.

A woman, on the other hand, may have her face lifted, lie about her age and dye her hair like Joseph's coat. But she will never admit that she is mentally a moron.

She will never concede that her intelligence is still in the infant-class—even when it IS. Yet, she will cheerfully marry a half-baked adolescent, on the theory that she is "only as old as she looks."

The truth is that ladies in the thirties or forties, who carelessly marry gorgeous young chauffeurs or football stars, and gentlemen in the mellow Indian summer of life who elope with baby-eyed chorines, do NOT marry for "mental companionship," however they may delude themselves. Why and how do they expect to find it?

You may love a baby or a kitten, but you don't expect either of them to stop chasing around and settle down evenings and discuss the philosophers or Brahms or "The Art of Thinking" with you. Or to take an interest in your symptoms or your diet-fads, or the latest collection at the Metropolitan Museum.

It's hard enough to live up to your mental superior; but living down to your mental INFERIOR is positively painful. You can't amuse a child for an hour without becoming pretty well exhausted. Fancy binding yourself over to amuse a child for LIFE!

If you MUST have something bright and cute and young around the house, get a Kewpie or a French doll or a Pekingese.

Toys and pets and children are all right to play with. But why MARRY them?

Happy, Although Married 80 Years

MR. AND MRS. NADOSY OF HUNGARY, HOLDERS OF THE MARRIED LONG-TIME RECORD

THIS COUPLE, (they do not look so VERY old), had lived together as man and wife for eighty years when this photograph was taken.

The man, Lazzlo Nadosy, is 105, his wife 102 years old.

Hungarians, still residing in their native land, and working on the land, in the Hungarian peasant costume, they are quite satisfied with what life has given them.

They never had an automobile, a vacuum cleaner, a radio set, a tractor, a piano able to play itself, or an electric washing machine.

They are in good health, own a piece of ground, know how to cultivate it, believe that they will go to heaven when they are through with this earth and continue to be happy there.

Many a man with a ten-thousand-dollar automobile, and a ten-million-dollar bank account might envy them.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—It is possible these long winter nights to bring the feverish gaiety of Monte Carlo into your home. A mere telephone call does the trick. An alchemist at an address on West 72d street is prepared to transmute your living quarters into a gambling casino.

He appears to have no compunction about the legality of such entertainment, for in his elaborately engraved announcement which he sends out indiscriminately he gives his name, address and telephone number. On the manifesto are bright etchings of crowds playing roulette, baccarat, chuck-a-luck and chemin de fier.

We quote from his announcement: "You may arrange an evening of unusual interest for your guests by transplanting to your own home or club the attractions of the famous casinos of the world. This can be expertly managed, without inconvenience to you, on fairly short terms.

"I am prepared to provide you with equipment and operators comparing favorably with the best here and abroad and personally supervise. If the games are banked wholly or in part by you or through co-operation of guests, I will participate to any extent you desire."

It is said he shows no interest in queries coming from any save "class addresses." He wants only people who will gamble high. Those who have seen his paraphernalia pronounce it magnificent and his croupiers are suave and tight-lipped old-world types.

The chief game-keeper—an Adonis in evening clothes—is reported to be a famous inside man in the days when Canfield's flourished. The gambling outfit is delivered in several compactly filled trunks and in three hours everything is ready for a night of play.

There are still many gamblers of other days knocking about the Tenderloin and in striking contrast to the oily and over-confident modern types. They have a silver-haired dignity and the urbanity of a Chesterfield. Most of them have seen their better days and live off the precarious fruits of small stake poker and dice games or serve as house players in billiard halls. No matter how sedate their dress, there is always a gaudy "give away" to distinguish them—a huge cameo pin, a fancy vest or a huge and glittering finger ring.

The professional gambler is rarely able to escape a nickname among his guild. And they are usually picturesque. Among the better known are Silent Holcombe, Wee Willie, Titanic, Peaches, Nigger Nate, Happy Hal and Whistling Tim.

One of the most pathetic sights we have seen lately—next to ourself in a looking glass—was a 200-pound gentleman in a great fur coat trying to coax along a tiny Pomeranian attached to a red ribbon while a group of young debutantes, waiting for limousines in front of Pierre's, tittered.

Nothing is so disconcerting to a man's vanity as the sudden giggle of a pretty maid. Whatever conceit he fosters vanishes like a flash. He imagines everything that is the matter with him, including, perhaps, a set of slightly bowed legs, has suddenly become as public as a statue in the park.

One of the best of the recent paragraphs [illegible] my notion is by W. W. Scott, who observed: "New Yorkers will stand for anything save a woman in the subway."

Such obvious paragraphs are most elusive of all for nit-wits who must think them up. A fellow never reads a homely reflection by Abe Martin without a reminder he has often observed the same thing.

They were wondering about a very handsome actor who takes his very unattractive wife with him wherever he goes. "Maybe," someone suggested, "it is because he hates to kiss her good-bye."

And below zero in conversation is reached in a Broadway revue.

1st Comedian: "Have you any children?"

2d Comedian: "No!"

1st Comedian: "I'm so sorry. I wanted to ask you how they are."
